How To End Vietnam War

In the first of a series of articles by Arthur J. Goldberg starting today in The Daily Colonist, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations outlines his proposals for ending the long conflict in South East Asia. His main points:

• The U.S. must now extend to all of North Vietnam its cessation of bombing.

• Reconvene the Geneva Conference with—or without Red China.

• Seek for South Vietnam the right to determine its own political destiny with internationally supervised elections on the basis of one man, one vote.

• Repudiate the outrageous trial and sentencing of former presidential candidate Truong Dinh Dm. Amnesty for all political prisoners.

Today's article appears on Page 5.

DENVER (UPI)—Hubert Humphrey said Monday he would have accepted a proposed platform plank calling for a total halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

The vice-president, stopping here on a cross-country dash in search of votes for the presidency, said the defeated minority plank on Vietnam proposed at the Democratic national convention was "so mildly different than the majority report that I would have had no difficulty in accepting it."

Earlier, in Philadelphia, Humphrey said he thought the United States could begin pulling some troops out of Vietnam late this year or early in 1969.

The minority plank on Vietnam had been proposed by backers of senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern. The convention rejected it resoundingly and McCarthy has since refused to endorse Humphrey.

Humphrey disclosed his stand on the plank in a question-and-answer session with an overflow crowd of his supporters, sprinkled with a handful of anti-war demonstrators. He did not go as far; however, as to say he would order a bombing halt if he were elected.

In Philadelphia, Humphrey told a group of political science students his campaign for the presidency, said "negotiations or no negotiations, I think we can move some troops out" by that time.

Humphrey, officially opening his campaign for the presidency, said "negotiations or no negotiations, I think we can move some troops out" by that time.

Matching Would Be Easier

U.S.-Wide Kidney Pool Urged for Transplants

NEW YORK (UPI)—A scientist called Monday for a U.S.-wide, and eventually international, pooling of cadaver kidneys so a donor kidney could be flown to the hospital where the most closely matched recipient is waiting.

"The kidney should be taken out and put in a box and shipped to wherever the patient is," he said.

Dr. Paul Terasaki, an immunologist at the School of Medicine, University of California at Los Angeles, made the recommendation at the second international congress of the Transplantation Society.

Donor kidneys cannot be shipped now because procedures to preserve them for longer than a few hours have not yet been developed. In three cases, however, recipients have been flown to the hospital where a donor kidney was to become available.

"It's very cumbersome to deal with this kind of thing," Terasaki told reporters, and said his laboratory and others are working on the problem of storage and shipping.

Terasaki reviewed 400 kidney transplants from throughout the world and found, he said that kidney transplant failures occur much more often in patients whose white blood cells are mismatched.

Typing of white blood cells appears to be the key to long term acceptance of organ transplants, he said. Terasaki's group also had done the typing for all the heart transplants performed in Houston, Tex.

PNE Dipper Destroyed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Damage was estimated at $200,000 Monday night in a blaze which wrecked the west end of the 72-foot high roller coaster structure at the PNE.

There were no injuries in the three-alarm blaze, believed to have started in gaming tents below the 10-year-old steel and wood structure. Flames licked 300 feet into the sky and were visible from all over the city.

He said he would not grant Ojukwu amnesty in return for a surrender in the 14-month war.

A reporter asked what the penalty for treason is in Nigeria.

"We follow English law," answered Gowon.

In fact, it would be death," said the reporter.

"Thank you," said Gowon.

Gowon swore he has given orders in federal troops to stand in what remains of Biafra to avoid a last-stand battle of civilians.

An estimated 6,000,000 persons are jammed in several thousand square miles of what once was the 29,000-square-mile Eastern Nigerian region.

"There is not going to be any indiscriminate slaughter of innocent civilians," said Gowon. "I want to swear it to God Almighty."

He added that the troops also have been ordered to avoid harming any of the scores of relief workers from Europe and North America now in Biafra.

He refused to take direct issue with President de Gaulle of France who told a news conference in Paris the possibility of French recognition of Biafra could not be excluded.

"He is head of state and he has the right to say anything he wants about any situation," said Gowon. "I only hope he considers the implication of any actions he contemplates during. I hope he does not take action. I can never tell the repercussions in this country."

"I am not worried about what anybody says about this country. All Nigerians are

Convention Floor

IWA Split

Opens

VANCOUVER (CP)—The rift between opposing factions in the Western Canadian regional council of the International Woodworkers of America appeared on the floor Monday on the opening day of the council's 31st annual convention.

The harsh words came during debate on two resolutions pertaining to the union's bargaining procedures during negotiations leading to a settlement reached this summer in a dispute involving 26,000 Coast members.

John Squires, former MLA and current business agent for the Port Alberni local, criticized the conduct of Vancouver local president Syd Thompson during discussion of a resolution on union advertising.

PUBLIC OPINION

The resolution, which was passed, urged the IWA's regional council to instruct its officers to continue to make news releases "to gain public opinion and to keep the membership fully informed."

"During the negotiations, committee members set up their own press rooms," Mr. Squires said in an obvious reference to Mr. Thompson, leadership rival of former Jack Moore in an upcoming vote.

OUT OF ORDER

"They set up their own strike deadlines and the issuing of their own press releases."

Another resolution, which eventually was declared out of order, sparked more criticism of Mr. Thompson.

The resolution asked that ways be found to conclude negotiations for future Coast contracts before the expiry date of the current contract.

OTHER MEMBERS

Jack Munro of the Nelson local said although Coast negotiators went three weeks past the expiry date of the agreement they gained 10 more cents an hour for woodworkers.

Other delegates who backed Mr. Moore's negotiating committee said that a no contract war clause would be harmful because employers could be prepared for a strike if they

Federal Adviser

Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, 56, replaced as president of Simon Fraser University after Canadian Association of University Teachers censured SFU. Monday was named principal scientific adviser to federal cabinet, succeeding Dr. E. G. Monroe.

Lakehead

Talks

Adequate

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Mackay said Monday night he has no immediate plans to introduce legislation to end the strike of Lakehead grain handlers but added he will not hesitate to seek a legislative end to the walkout if present mediation offers fail.

He was commenting in an interview as labor department mediators continued late-night talks with representatives of the union and companies involved in the strike which began July 13.

"As long as talks are progressing to my satisfaction I have no intention of introducing legislation," Mr. Mackay said.

However, if the talks broke down and there remained no apparent hope of an early settlement "I will not hesitate to introduce the appropriate legislation," Parliament assembled Thursday.

There are no secret ingredients in Super Shell. Just know-how.

Making gasoline is a little like making a martini.

Most people use the same ingredients, but not everybody knows how to put them together for best results.

There are no secrets among Super Shell's ingredients, and most are used in one competitive gasoline or another. But no two refineries use all of the same ingredients in the same proportions.

5 mileage ingredients

Super Shell has five ingredients for good mileage.

(1) Platformate contains petroleum molecules with extra energy built into them.

(2) If your spark plugs misfire, you waste gasoline. TCP helps to prevent this.

(3) Buane helps give fast starts. And the faster you start, the less gasoline you use before you get going.

(4) A detergent fights deposits that can build up inside the carburetor. These deposits hurt your mileage.

(5) Mixed Pentanes help your engine warm up quickly—whatever the weather. This prevents misfiring, bucking, coughing and wasted fuel.

These five ingredients make Super Shell a good mileage gasoline.

You'd expect it to come from Shell. After all, mileage is our business.

How to go farther

Everybody at Shell wants you to go farther. We think about all the things on your car that can hurt your mileage. Like soft tires. A dirty air filter. Worn spark plugs.

We look for new ways to help you get better mileage. In summer and winter. In city traffic and on the highway.

Alternative Weapon

ECONOMY is not a primary consideration in national defence. Effectiveness and efficiency are of the first importance.

But if it is possible to achieve all three, so much the better.

Current estimates call for a billion and a half dollars to pay the national defence bill and the figure for ship construction is set at $76,399,000. The cost of a destroyer escort, fully operational, is about $30,000,000. And in some quarters there is a belief they are close to obsolescence.

These ships are Canada's main naval armament.

It has been suggested that long-range aircraft are an essential supplement to escort ships and that, in any event, Canadian destroyers, even working with helicopters, would be largely ineffective against nuclear-powered undersea craft. The answer to that threat, it seems, is a submarine of equal speed and strike power.

Should we, therefore, reappraise our naval defence program in the light of our commitments?

And should we give thought to the possibility that ocean convoys, for whose protection the destroyer escort is designed, are a thing of the past?

There is a school of thought which maintains that intercontinental war can no longer be supported by normal sea transport, even if it were fought without long-range nuclear missiles.

There may be some merit in the suggestion that this nation could best serve the North Atlantic Treaty Organization with a fleet of small, missile-carrying vessels to be based at strategic points.

It was a pattern of Russian-made Styx missiles fired from a Russian-built Komar Class vessel one-eighth her size which sank the Israeli destroyer Elat before she could fire a shot. It is true it was a sneak attack. But these missiles have a range of at least 30 miles and can therefore be fired from over the horizon from a carrier out of radar reach.

There is very considerable misgiving in American naval circles over the risk to the battleship New Jersey which has given a bombardment assignment in the Gulf of Tonkin. It is considered she would be vulnerable to missile attack—from shore bases if she closes to within her maximum range of 26 miles, or by little missile ships guided to target by shore radar.

Russia thinks enough of these missile-carrying vessels to have built a fleet reported to number 500.

The cost is believed to be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. For the price of a Canadian destroyer 30 of these mosquito craft could be sent to sea, if the figure is correct.

If Canada cannot afford nuclear submarines, at least we could provide the less expensive weapon which would to some extent free our allies to pursue the more onerous role and serve our purpose of mutual defence in NATO.

Star is Still High

THERE IS NO SUCH THING as a "safe" constituency in any Canadian election. But on the record of the recent past Mr. T. C. Douglas should win the Nanaimo-Cowichan The Islands seat for the New Democratic Party handily whenever a contest is scheduled. He got his party's nomination unopposed at a Sunday meeting in Chemainus.

The byelection was necessitated by the death of Mr. Colin Cameron.

Even after deductions from all candidates' scores last June 25, following exposure of an unexplained discrepancy of nearly 5,000 on the voters' list, Mr. Cameron had a solid majority, topping his closest pursuer, Mr. Mladin Zorkin, Liberal, by close to 4,000 ballots.

So, for the leader of the NDP and one-time premier of Saskatchewan, the course should not be difficult, particularly as he has had the wit to offer exciting platform policies, including revitalization of the ship-building industry, re-establishment of a Canadian merchant marine, and study of feasibility of an audacious plan to link Vancouver Island with the mainland by bridge, tunnel or causeway or a combination of these.

Mr. Douglas has always been an imaginative campaigner, and equally effective in debate. There is no doubt he would be a useful addition to the Opposition side of the House of Commons. It has even been suggested outside his party that he might not be opposed.

Assuming he returns to Ottawa, the question of the party leadership will be that much more complicated. He has said he does not want it. But, at the party convention in the fall of 1969, he might be prevailed upon to reconsider. There is bound to be strong sentimental support for the veteran, who, at 63, still can promise constructive and productive years of service.

In fact, in a long list of possible alternates suggested by the parliamentary leader, Mr. David Lewis, there is not a name to match the Douglas stature.

His political star is still high above the horizon.

Pollution Control

THE NEED for air and water pollution controls in the form of standards which Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has announced will soon be issued, and vigorously enforced by his department, is indisputable. It may be odd that Mr. Loffmark is operating with such seeming independence of the rest of the government, but he is to be commended nevertheless for taking a firm stand on keeping the air and the waters of British Columbia clean and restoring purity where it has already ceased to exist.

Apart from financial considerations—municipalities ordered to meet the standards in their discharge of sewage undoubtedly will be clamoring for further assistance from the government, and with good reason—one possibly bothersome aspect of the minister's plan is that it could impede progress in sewerage in areas that do not have sewer systems.

The minister says he has no intention of establishing soil purity standards. But if the health department is going to make municipalities or regions conform to high sewage-discharge requirements, it would seem only logical that the minister should also use his power to order the installation of sewers where seepage contaminates the land.

Background to Tragedy

Fear Impelled the Russian Intervention As Czechoslovakia Fought for Freedom

By WILLIAM E. GRIFFITH

(Dr. Griffith is professor of political sciences at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of the International Communist project at its centre for studies.)

MUNION: alliance with Moscow, continuing nationalization of industry, and the Communist Party at the head of affairs, will Alexander Dubcek become a new Janos Kadar, the unwilling Quisling of a Soviet-imposed crackdown? Or will Moscow's brutality only slow down, but not reverse, the trend toward independence and liberalization in Czechoslovakia and the other countries of Eastern Europe?

To answer these questions requires some background. What happened in Czechoslovakia, and why? What impelled the Soviets to march in? And to what has Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev forced Dubcek to agree, and why?

First, Czechoslovakia is a very important country for the Russians. "Whoever controls Bohemia," said Bismarck, "controls Europe." Its central location makes it strategically important. Its high level of economic development makes it economically important. Its long history, its western culture, and its democratic traditions pre-dispose it to resent Russian domination and domestic oppression. For centuries ruled by Austria, in 1938 abandoned by the West and conquered and enslaved by the Nazis: small wonder that in 1945 most Czechs and Slovaks preferred Russian protection and in 1948 bowed to a Communist takeover.

Second, with Novotny's authority destroyed by this and by the forced public revelations of his complicity in Stalinist crimes, and with the end of secret police terror subsequent to de-Stalinization, the Czech and Slovak intelligentsia over the last five years, cautiously learned the way for the great turn.

Finally, the Slovak Communists led by Alexander Dubcek last year rebelled against Czech domination.

Slovakia is the poorer, less developed part of the country, and the Czechs, Communists as well as democrats, have ruled it not wisely but too closely. In October, 1967, the Slovaks, determined to gain equality with the Czechs, defied Novotny, allied with the liberal Czechs, and drove him out.

His successor, Dubcek, sought popularity, used experts, and wanted to loosen up the frozen, failing Stalinist model of rule. But he was and is a Communist. However, the liberals in radio, television and press, whose help Dubcek needed to get rid of Novotny, used their freedom to lead the thrust toward greater democracy. And Dubcek, with the Communist Party machine discredited and ineffective, chose to go along and try to control it, and became more liberal in the process.

But even if the Red Army had not intervened, Czechoslovakia would not have ceased being Communist. Czechoslovakia was bombing widespread although not total freedom of speech and the press, a decentralized Yugoslav-type economy, and equal rights in a federalized system for Slovakia, with the maintenance of what Dubcek saw as the three essentials of communist rule: a strong, centralized state, a powerful party, and a strong, centralized state.

Moreover, the Russians were surprised and concerned by the extent of the worldwide chorus of condemnation, most of all by Czechoslovakia, founded in 1918, was the only enduring inter-war democracy, except Switzerland, east of the Rhine.

Although at least three conservatives were tempted, the massive, almost unanimous, indeed unprecedented resistance of the Czechs and Slovaks—youth, students, workers—intimidated those potential Quislings. The country and its leaders thus remained steadfast in passive, sometimes bloody, opposition. Czechoslovakia's blood and tears were its glory.

Even so, Soviet action was slow, hesitant and contradictory. First, Brezhnev let Novotny be replaced by Dubcek. True, Dubcek had been raised in the Soviet Union, where his father, an early Slovak Communist, had settled. But they both had been expelled from the U.S.S.R. in 1938, and some of their associates were shot or imprisoned—something Dubcek has presumably not forgotten.

Additionally, the Russians underestimated the speed and extent of change and long hesitated between East German and Polish Gomulka's urgings to intervene and their own desire not to imperil their other interests thereby. And, when they did intervene, they expected that some conservative Communist leaders would support them. But just the contrary happened.

Neither they nor their equivalents in other Communist countries are likely again so easily to trust a Soviet guarantee of support. Indeed, one conservative, the Slovak Blah, has already been voted out of office. Moreover, the Soviet-sponsored international Communist conference, scheduled for Moscow in November, will hardly come off in the way Moscow has planned it. The disintegration of NATO has been halted. West European Communist parties have publicly disavowed the Russians.

They should suspend the air flight agreement with Moscow from which the Russians profit more than they. They should withdraw their ambassador from Moscow for consultation. They should rapidly provide help for those Czechs stranded abroad and for any who flee. They should extend most-favored-nation treatment to Romania and withdraw it from Poland.

President Johnson has properly postponed his visit to meet Alex Kosygin, and I would hope that he would be in no great hurry to remeet him. Sen. Mike Mansfield has courageously reversed his view that the U.S. should make massive unilateral troops withdrawal from Europe; the U.S. government should make publicly clear that it will not.

Because one cannot do much, one need not do nothing. Sen. Eugene McCarthy said the president should have gone to bed rather than work on the Czechoslovak crisis—and succeeded only in demonstrating his own insensitivity to international politics, and to tyranny. The state department seems all too ready to make clear that the U.S. will do nothing to hinder Moscow from continuing its rape of Czechoslovakia.

Need Americans so publicly, so cynically, proclaim their disinterest?

The United States has many great problems: Vietnam, civil rights, cities. Czechoslovakia is small; it is far away; they can do little. But surely the "decent respect for the opinions of mankind" of which Jefferson wrote requires them to swear again, with him, "unfeigned hostility to every form of tyranny over the mind of man," and to make clear, as a government and a people, revulsion and condemnation, of Russian imperialism and the support of its victims, in deeds as well as in words.

Anything less would be contrary to American interests and would sully the national honor.

Washington Calling

Democrats Face Formidable Task

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE Democrats have no place to go but up. After that, the hapless shambles of a convention, the climb out of the pit looks impossibly steep.

The forces of anarchy in the streets were matched by the anarchic conduct often prevailing in the convention hall. Having clothed Sen. Eugene McCarthy with the multi-colored array of their discontents, his most impassioned followers seemed bent on rule or ruin. He could only have been acutely embarrassed as his surly Yippie-hippie following massed across from the Conrad Hilton Hotel, flanked by police and National Guardsmen, shouting obscenities throughout the night through amplifying devices.

At this late moment the McCarthy image has been worn down to a shadow of its once bright promise. In the critical stages, many who had faltered until many who had given him their all were forced to admit that perhaps he really did not want to be president. Another device was necessary if the "stop Humphrey" drive was to have any chance of success.

The expedient that the left-of-centre Democrats resorted to was a measure of the party's desperation. It was to whip up a move to draft Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts. Conceived in futility and born of despair, the light from this little boomerang flickered briefly and then, like a candle in a hurricane, was snuffed out.

Among the more anarchic rule-or-ruin elements within the big California delegation the Kennedy boomerang had its principal support. They were looking for a savior, and the magic of the Kennedy name was assumed to be enough to turn the convention around and send it in a delirium of joy down the Kennedy course. One of the principal boosters was Jesse Unruh, the homespun Machiavelli who sees his own power base as speaker of the California Assembly threatened by the Americans ate their empty words of "liberation" while Red Army tanks crushed the Hungarian revolution. And finally, Washington did no more than authorize Ambassador George Ball's scathing speech at the United Nations in the latest crisis.

Should America do more? The U.S., of course should not use military force; Czechoslovakia and the world would only reap destruction thereby. Moreover, the need to limit the threat of nuclear war, the long-range desirability of influencing the moderate forces in Russia toward reconciliation, in short, an active policy of peaceful engagement rather than a hollow rhetorical one of denunciation, all indicate that at spite of Czechoslovakia, Washington properly is not abandoning its hopes for further progress in arms control agreements.

But the Soviet leadership remains divided and uncertain. Its struggle with the Czechs is just beginning, and its positions are not yet firm. There are some small, specific, symbolic, and perhaps even effective steps that the United States should take before and should take now.

They should suspend the air flight agreement with Moscow from which the Russians profit more than they. They should withdraw their ambassador from Moscow for consultation. They should rapidly provide help for those Czechs stranded abroad and for any who flee. They should extend most-favored-nation treatment to Romania and withdraw it from Poland. President Johnson has properly postponed his visit to meet Alex Kosygin, and I would hope that he would be in no great hurry to remeet him. Sen. Mike Mansfield has courageously reversed his view that the U.S. should make massive unilateral troops withdrawal from Europe; the U.S. government should make publicly clear what it means for this last survivor of a great and hopefully past to put his own person in jeopardy.

Moreover, he is 38 years old. His experience has been far more limited than that of either of his brothers. He has shown great promise in the Senate. It is a promise that in four years or eight years can mature into the stuff that presidents are made of.

At the very time they were coaxing the Kennedy boomerang along, the more cynical of the maneuverers were coining in private that he would have only an outside chance to defeat Richard Nixon in November. But he would help greatly in California and New York, where the magic of the Kennedy name is brightest. The ancient principle of "Save yourself if you can" was at work.

For this frantic scramble the news media must take a considerable share of responsibility, and particularly certain television reporters. They did a lot to manufacture the Kennedy boomerang carrying rumor and hopefully exaggerated reports to startled delegates on the convention floor. Eric Sevareid of CBS went so far as to say that the boomerang was a creation of the news media.

The motive may have been merely to relieve the tedium of the kind of inevitability that characterized the convention in Miami Beach as Republican

"It would be nice if they had a law saying people who use guns should know how."

Halt the Vietnam Bombing Now And Include Viet Cong in Talks

By ARTHUR J. GOLDBERG

The naked aggression by the Soviet Union in Czechoslovakia should intensify, rather than deter, American efforts to obtain an honorable political settlement of the war in Vietnam. This is because the greatest potential threat to U.S. security still is the nuclear-armed Soviet Union.

Powerful as it is, the United States cannot be a world policeman. Therefore, it should not allow its strength to be dissipated by over-involvement in internal conflicts within or between small powers, however it mayabor their ideology and aggressiveness.

In Vietnam, the U.S. does not face a big-power monolithic Communist bloc threatening its security. Despite Hanoi's verbal support for the disgruntled Soviet action in Czechoslovakia, and its dependence on Russian and Chinese military and economic supplies, it pursued its own Communist policies.

These North Vietnamese policies are hostile to their neighbors.

The proper course for these neighbors is to defend themselves by building just and stable societies with adequate security forces backed up by appropriate regional arrangements.

The United States should contribute to these in a subsidiary way, without assuming the primary role.

Johnson's Courage

President Johnson took a giant first step toward peace in his March 31 announcements limiting bombing of the North and declaring he will retire from politics. This was an unparalleled act of patriotism and political courage.

The result was the Paris talks, a highly useful prelude to negotiations on the substance of a settlement.

This first step has opened the door to peace. Now the U.S. must open it further by taking the next step by extending to all of North Vietnam cessation of bombing.

I realize that there are risks in this course of action. But the risks also great risks in continuing the stalemate which has developed in the Paris talks. Any course entails risks; the U.S. must choose the one that leads it toward its goals.

The talks in Korea during the early 1950's carried risks. While they proceeded, as we are often reminded, some of the war's bloodiest fighting occurred. But the result was a permanent cease-fire. In the end, lives were saved.

Curb on Hanoi

This opens the way to urge as the first subject under "everything" in the wide-open talks that appropriate arrangements be made to ensure that Hanoi does not use the bombing cessation to obtain a military advantage.

I believe the U.S. will have powerful support among Hanoi's allies against the risk of such advantage-taking. The Soviets and East Europeans have repeatedly intimated that if the United States stops the bombing of North Vietnam, constructive results will follow.

Faith in their intimations has been shaken by the Czechoslovak events.

Ceasefire Unpractical

Some responsible American and foreign public figures have suggested that the opening of negotiations be accompanied by or preceded by a ceasefire. This would be highly desirable if it could be achieved, and indeed is a worthwhile subject for the "everything" stage of the talks.

But it is only realistic to recognize that all sides have had reservations about the practicality of a ceasefire before a substantive peace settlement is reached.

Similar problems regarding the timing of a ceasefire were handled in 1954 at Geneva. Under terms of the agreements the ceasefire followed the accords; it did not precede them.

I strongly feel that the 1954 Geneva agreements, together with the 1962 Geneva accords on Laos, can be the basis for restoring peace to Vietnam and Southeast Asia.

My belief in this is reinforced by the fact that both the North Vietnamese and the United States have given at least verbal support to the accords as the essential basis for a peace settlement — despite differing interpretations of them.

I have always felt, for this reason, that this is where you

THE GOLDBERG POLICY

With these considerations in mind, the U.S. must keep its "cool," despite a justifiable sense of outrage against the shameless Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The U.S. must keep its own national interests foremost: Vital American interests dictate a political solution of the Vietnam conflict.

I am convinced that the time has come to halt all American bombing of North Vietnam.

I am convinced that the time has come to halt all American bombing of North Vietnam, in order to move forward to attain an honorable political settlement of the war.

I say this as one who has believed in and worked for a political settlement throughout my three years as United States permanent representative to the United Nations.

As I explained when leaving government service a few weeks ago, I now feel that I can contribute more to world peace as a private citizen, free from the inhibitions of official status.

Following the letter and spirit of the earlier Geneva accords, the U.S. objective should be, first of all, a political solution.

As regards North Vietnam, it should seek for it the right to decide its own political destiny through democratic self-determination, with all segments of the population and all individuals participating peacefully — whatever the results of their decision may be.

These elections should be internationally supervised and should be on the basis of one man, one vote, with no disenfranchisement from voting or governmental participation of any group or individual, whatever their ideology, as long as they are willing to stop fighting and take part in a peaceful electoral process.

These elections, by and for the South Vietnamese, should determine their future government. The United States should neither impose a government nor oppose their free choice, whatever the composition of the government may be.

By the same token, if the South Vietnamese government and its adversaries freely negotiate the composition of an interim government, pending elections, the U.S. should not stand in the way. On the contrary, it should encourage the people and all factions in the South to bind up the nation's wounds.

As regards North Vietnam, it should make explicitly clear that it has foreseen any effort to overthrow the Hanoi government, despite its distaste for it.

As regards South Vietnam, the U.S. government has been insisting that Hanoi provide it with assurances in advance that it will match a bombing halt with reductions of its own war effort.

However reasonable a logical such a proposal may be, all indications are that North Vietnam will not expressly agree.

Furthermore, as the brutal Soviet and satellite behavior in Czechoslovakia shows, promises by Communists are often unreliable, to say the least. Rather than rely on them, the U.S. should place its faith in actions by Hanoi to de-escalate the war.

This is a course which the U.S. government frequently has advocated and should be acceptable. In this context, it should make the first move by totally stopping the bombing, and then standing alert to see whether Hanoi responds with such actions.

In the Paris talks, Hanoi's negotiators have refused to discuss reciprocal moves while the bombing continues. But they have repeatedly promised to discuss "everything" when bombing of the North stops.

There will be complications because the National Liberation Front is verbally less committed to the Geneva formula than Hanoi is, and because Communist China is directly opposed.

The task will be inherently difficult and complex. The U.S. should be prepared for protracted negotiations, characterized by stops and starts. This being the case, I would like to add my support for increasingly transferring the major responsibility for the war to the South Vietnamese.

If the war escalates again, then I believe the Soviets and Chinese will see to it that North Vietnamese losses are fully compensated. They have already demonstrated this.

At the same time, I also like to add a deeply considered word of concern in opposition to reverting to the pre-March 31 policy of military bases.

Not in U.S. Interest

It is not in the American interest to unite the Soviet Union and Communist China on this issue at a time when they have seriously divergent world positions. Even the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in support of ideological orthodoxy has evoked scorn from the Chinese.

Nor is it in the American interest to let the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia deprive it of Soviet assistance in reaching an honorable accommodation in Vietnam. The only beneficiaries there would be the Chinese.

In making these proposals, I am aware of course that one of the major difficulties is the understandable fear of the government in Saigon that its political future will be jeopardized in the peace settlement.

But they must recognize that a political solution necessarily will involve concessions on both sides. They must realize that both South Vietnamese and American interests will be best served by negotiating a settlement NOW. While the American people still are committed to an honorable way out rather

The present South Vietnamese bars to neutralists and Communists participating peacefully in the political process would therefore have to be eliminated. Obviously the outrageous trial and sentencing of former presidential candidate Truong Dinh Dzu and others must be repudiated. There should be an exchange of all prisoners of war and amnesty for all political prisoners.

Furthermore, the U.S. should be ready to commit itself to the reunification of North and South Vietnam, to be decided upon through a free choice of the peoples of both North and South, without outside interference.

The U.S. should agree also to forego any military base in South Vietnam and to abstain from imposing any military alliance on South Vietnam.

There will be complications

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

Tomorrow, Arthur Goldberg discusses the Middle East situation and advises the U.S. should supply Israel with Phantom Jets. The only beneficiaries there would be the Chinese.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured skin and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

But it does seem apparent that their political interests — in relation to Communist China — and the economic burden of supplying Hanoi — all point in the direction of using their great influence on behalf of North Vietnamese de-escalation and political settlement.

The bombing of North Vietnam has not been a resounding military success, and men and supplies continue to infiltrate South Vietnam. But if the U.S. halts the bombing, opening up risks, there still will be ways open to keep these risks manageable.

De Gaulle and Quebec

CP-Reuters, from Paris

Whatever French President de Gaulle's policy is toward Canada and Quebec, it is not likely to change because there is a French-speaking prime minister in Ottawa.

At his news conference Monday the president was asked whether he would "modify" France's policy with regard to Quebec now that Pierre Elliott Trudeau is in office.

"Certainly not," de Gaulle said, without elaboration.

But de Gaulle made it clear he does not think much of federations such as those of Canada and Nigeria.

De Gaulle has been accused by some of supporting separatism in Quebec ever since his now-famous call of "Vive le Quebec libre" during his shortened visit to Canada last year.

The president has never given direct support to separatists. But he has dealt directly with the province of Quebec on a number of matters and caused some anger in Ottawa.

Monday, he came out as close as he has ever come to such support.

De Gaulle held out the possibility of eventual French recognition of Biafra, the breakaway Eastern region of Nigeria. While he was on the subject he made his criticism of federations.

Nigeria is a federation of several tribes and de Gaulle said he is not sure that the concept of a federation replacing a colonial formula is always good or practical.

The concept involved compulsory association of people who were sometimes different and not at all in favor of federation.

"One sees it in Canada . . . in Rhodesia, in Malaysia, in Cyprus and in Nigeria."

Lies Admitted By Witness

VANCOUVER (CP) — A crown witness said in B.C. Supreme Court Monday he had lied under oath. He conceded he had said he was working for a company when in fact he was trafficking in drugs.

Stephen Quinn, 19, of Toronto, testifying in the trial of 10 men charged in the kidnap-torture of James Cannan, 21, testified he had lied in testimony Friday.

Quinn said he later told Crown counsel Sam Toy he had actually been selling drugs. "I was aware that I was giving false evidence and I wished to clarify it."

Quinn, who said he didn't know what is meant by perjury, testified Monday he had sold the drugs LSD and marijuana to Cannan.

Quinn said he had been selling drugs here from September, 1967, to February of this year. He testified Friday he had worked for a sandblasting and painting company but said Monday he actually worked there only one day.

EVIDENCE ACT

He said he lied because he did not want to be prosecuted for drug trafficking. He said he hadn't been aware that he could be protected under the Canada Evidence Act from giving testimony that could be used against him.

The 10 accused all have pleaded not guilty to confining Cannan against his will, assaulting him with intent to wound, maim, disfigure or cause bodily harm, assaulting causing bodily harm and indecent assault. The trial will continue.

Marine Jailed for Life

DA NANG, South Vietnam subject to automatic appeal, (UPI) — A general court-martial Monday convicted a 20-year-old U.S. Marine here of murdering five South Vietnamese civilians and sentenced him to life at hard-labor in prison.

The prosecution pictured the defendant, Lance Cpl. Denzel R. Allen of Lebanon, Ind., as a cold-blooded killer who used ropes, knives and rifles to murder his victims.

The defence said Allen had distinguished himself as a soldier in two tours of duty in Vietnam, had been recommended for gallantry in action, and suggested he had "lost perspective and sense of values" because of his long months in the war zone.

Six other Marines will be tried later this month on similar charges.

In addition to the life in prison term, the court ordered Allen dishonorably discharged from the Marine Corps and stripped him of all pay and allowances. The sentence is subject to automatic appeal, (UPI) — A general court-martial Monday convicted a 20-year-old U.S. Marine here of murdering five South Vietnamese civilians and sentenced him to life at hard-labor in prison.

The defence attorney, Capt. Sandy McMath said Allen was convinced at the time all five victims were Viet Cong and that all were on the blacklist of the local village chief. He said Allen had been recommended for a Navy Cross for gallantry in action the morning of May 6 when the bivouac area was attacked.

"There is a very thin line between being a hero and being a murderer," McMath said.

New Trial Set For Director

TORONTO (CP) — County Court Judge William Sheppard Monday ordered that the new trial of John H. Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission, be held before a judge only.

Campbell was acquitted two years ago when he faced a breach-of-trust charge before a judge. Judge W. F. B. Rogers but a new trial was ordered by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Campbell is accused of having negotiated with George and Viola MacMillan to keep their Windfall stock from being suspended from trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

George Finlayson, Campbell's lawyer, argued that in facing a re-run of his first trial, Campbell was entitled to trial by judge and jury. The first trial was before a judge.

Judge Sheppard ruled that as the Crown was unwilling to consent to the change, the trial must proceed before a judge only.

In Stock Sales, Purchases

Firm Charged with Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission said Monday its staff has brought fraud charges against First Hanover Corp., a New York-based brokerage firm, in connection with the sale and purchase of stocks.

The charges also are aimed at six officers and employees of the company, including President Alfred N. Lerner.

The SEC's division of trading and markets said some of the respondents made false and misleading statements to customers about certain stocks, recommending purchases without making "reasonable and diligent inquiry" about the companies' financial health. The division said others failed to supervise adequately the activities of persons under their control.

No date was set for a hearing on the charges. The allegations are an administrative matter entirely within the SEC. The allegations centre on transactions in the stock of Inteltron Corp., American Beryllium and Oil Corp., Azalea Mobile Homes Inc., and Movimatic Industries.

Daley Post-Report Stand: Defend Police to End

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard Daley defended his police department Monday against charges it used excessive force to control anti-war demonstrators during the Democratic national convention and accused news media of exaggerating street rioting that re-

Daley said he is not fully satisfied with the conduct of some policemen during the disorders that marked the convention.

"I have said that any overreaction by the police department is being investigated, thoroughly investigated," he said.

"But I would be the first to defend them to the end," he added. "The comment that all our policemen acted this way is not true."

Daley said police were subjected to filthy, vile epithets from the demonstrators and some policemen were targets for a variety of objects including human excrement.

Asked what he considered the greatest misunderstanding during the convention week, he replied:

"The failure of the news media to tell the American people what actually happened during the days of the convention."

Daley reiterated his earlier charge that the media exaggerated the amount of force used by police to control the demonstrators.

Saskatchewan Plays With Ace in Oil Hole

By HARRY YOUNG

Business Editor

The Saskatchewan government, if all goes well, hopes to bring out a new pack of cards to play an entirely new leasing game with the oil and gas industry.

The new pack is needed to play the Devonian, and in this particular competition the only possible winner is the government.

Up to now the Saskatchewan government in its sale of crown leases to the oil industry has given the mineral rights only as deep as the Lower Mississippian formation. This suited the oil industry all right at the time because most of the oil and gas discovered in Saskatchewan has been in the shallow depth formations.

The Devonian, Silurian and

Desmarais

Cambrian formations, which extend deep below the Lower Mississippian, were excluded from the sales.

In the past month, the whole pattern of oil exploration in Saskatchewan has been changed. In that period three wells in the southern part of the province have explored into the Devonian, and from this deeper structure, the flow of light gravity oil is said to have been very encouraging.

BIG FACTOR

Most significant, too, is the fact that the three Devonian discoveries — the first in two years in the province have been at fairly widely scattered points.

The first was at Gladmer, 100 miles south of Regina; the second and third, announced this week, at Oreyon, 65 miles south of Regina and found by Golden Eagle Oil, and at Smiley, 130 miles southeast of Saskatoon, by Husky Oil.

FREEHOLD LAND

Except on freehold land, oil companies with holdings in these areas who want to test the Devonian and beyond will have to make another land bid to the Saskatchewan government, and as the oil and gas sales, as elsewhere, are open to all bidders, there is the possibility that one oil company with rights to the Mississippian might find a rival oil company drilling below that level in the same section.

This may cause complications and annoyances to all concerned, but meantime an entirely new round of oil sales has opened itself up to the province.

The situation is not paralleled in other Western provinces where in most cases oil rights entitle the driller to explore all formations below the surface. This is the case in British Columbia, where leases are dependent upon operators drilling to a minimum, but not a maximum level.

Canadian Output Not All Peachy

OTTAWA (CP) — Unfavorable weather has cut into the production of all major Canadian fruit crops except peaches this year, government surveys have disclosed.

The important apple harvest is estimated at 20,383,000 bushels, off 17 per cent in volume and about $7,000,000 in value from last year's record 24,485,000 bushels, which were worth almost $40,000,000 to growers.

VERY DRY SEASON

Nova Scotia has suffered an exceptionally dry season and expects its harvest to decline by 21 per cent. Quebec was hit by frost in the bloom season and its crop will be off 26 per cent.

Although the French H-bomb is considered to be still several years away from becoming an operational weapon, the smaller second explosion was a step toward development of a warhead small enough for use on missiles.

Plans to land on the Mururoa Atoll, where the explosion took place, less than six hours after the test, Sicurani said.

Manufacturers' Plea: Cut Costs and Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association advised the federal government Monday to keep chopping at its expenditures and make way for tax cuts as soon as possible.

The CMA put its familiar position on taxes to Finance Minister Benson in an annual pre-budget presentation. Mr. Benson's first budget is expected in mid-October.

The 14-man delegation said manufacturers expect the budget to state "the main economic principles which will guide the actions of the new administration."

Hopefully, it would pave the way to balance expansion of the economy, and a "healthy relationship" between government and the private sector.

The government's case for the present "high" level of corporation and personal income taxes on the current "high" levels of government expenditure if it rests on anything, said the CMA brief.

To attract capital into Canada, to create domestic savings for investment, and to keep skilled people in the country, corporation and personal income taxes should be significantly lower in Canada than in the United States, said the CMA.

CMA DISTURBED

The brief discussed trade extensively, and said the CMA is disturbed and anxious about Canada's growing dependence on the U.S. for export sales. It was urged that Canada improve its sales in the Middle East, the Far East and Africa.

In the last three years, the share of Canadian exports bought by the U.S. had increased to 64 per cent from 53 per cent.

ONE MARKET

This dependence on one market can only be viewed with anxiety, particularly since Canada's exports to so many other countries have either stagnated or decreased."

The brief suggested a series of measures the government could take to improve trade departmental services.

The association, which claims 6,500 members representing 75 per cent of manufacturing output, asked for further relief through replacement of the existing federal sales tax.

The Carter royal commission on taxation has recommended that the hidden wholesale tax be superseded by a visible, federal sales tax applied at the retail level.

The brief asked for a general ban on strikes in the public service. No one should have to suffer interruption of essential services, interruptions that sometimes force wage settlements with inflationary repercussions.

Edmonton Eskimos intercepted four passes in the second half, with Ian MacLeod running one for a touchdown, to upset Calgary Stampeders 10-8, in a Western Football Conference game Sunday.

In an interlocking game, Montreal Alouettes came from behind twice to edge Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 21-15.

Edmonton's interceptions, all on passing wizard Peter Liske, wiped out an 8-0 Calgary lead, collapsed three late Stampeders marches and gave Eskimos their third win of the season and solid control of third place.

KEMPFF HELPS

Peter Kempff backed up MacLeod's interception heroics with a 38-yard field goal and a convert, while the Eskimo defense kept the Calgary attack tied down except for a second-quarter touchdown surge directed by Jerry Keeling.

Keeling, who surrendered the signal-calling chores to Liske in the final moments of the second quarter, got a Stampeders touchdown on a one-yard quarterback sneak. Larry Robinson contributed a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Charlie Fulton, the import quarterback who was called on by coach Neil Armstrong to get the Eskimo attack out of a three-game doldrum, did just that — primarily with some fancy running.

Fulton elected to stay on the ground, going for 36 yards himself, and although he produced only three points he managed to move the ball well enough to keep the Stampeders in their own end of the field for a good part of the contest.

SHAKEN UP

He was shaken up midway through the fourth quarter and gave way to Frank Cossentino, the Canadian whose job he had taken. Cossentino concentrated primarily on running out the clock.

Keling directed the Stampeders 81 yards in 10 plays for the game's first touchdown before 19,263 fans. A 43-yard pass to Herman Harrison on the Edmonton four-yard line was the key play in the drive.

PENALTIES COSTLY

Fulton's roll-and-run tactics got Edmonton on the scoreboard in the early stages of the third quarter, with the Stampeders paving the way for Kempff's field goal with two penalties.

Five minutes later, MacLeod cut in front of Terry Evansham to grab Liske's pass and run 19 yards into the Stampeders end zone.

Undaunted Liske stayed with his favorite weapon, the pass, a play that proved unsuccessful.

THREE MORE TIMES

Mike Law intercepted on the Calgary 30, then Robbie Campbell cut short a promising Stampeders thrust with an interception on the Edmonton 23. MacLeod administered the cup in the final moments, intercepting on 7-1, 15-4 and 18-7. Gaels won the Edmonton five-yard line and returning the ball 34 yards.

PASS ALOUETTES

Alouettes finished strong in Winnipeg, with Carrell Williams firing two last-quarter touchdowns passes to Dennis Duncan and Donnie Davis. Williams also threw a touchdown pass to Andy Walton in the second quarter. John Baker was good on all three conversion tries.

Bombers had taken their lead on a one-yard plunge across the goal line by quarterback John Schneider, and three field goals by Pierre Guérin who missed the convert attempt.

PUNTS BEAT BOMBERS

Punting told the story in Winnipeg, with short punts from deep in their zone by Ed Ulmer spelling disaster for the Bombers before moving to the WFC this season.

Also trying out with the Lions is Giggy Smaha, a 6'3", 225-pound offensive lineman and defensive linebacker from the University of Georgia.

Toronto Dries Tears Pushes Stadium Plan

TORONTO (CP) — The tears were dried Monday and Toronto, which lost to Montreal in its bid to play host to the 1976 Olympic Games, will go ahead with plans for a massive development of sports facilities.

"We'll be the city that's known as the sports capital of the nation," said William Allen, Metropolitan Toronto chairman.

Next match: Saturday—Kneelock Cup final, Victoria vs. Incogs, Beacon Park, 2:30 p.m.

Castaways claimed third place over Incogs Sunday in the final matches of the regular league schedule.

Captain Dick Hale led Castaways to victory over Alberni, scoring 30 runs as Castaways replied with 318 for four to the losers' total of 116 all out at Beacon Hill Park.

Trevor Holgate, four for 41, and Doug Dodge, four for 31, led the winners' bowing attack; John Shester scored 45 not out and Malcolm Shantz had 34 for the losers.

Incogs failed to hold onto third when they were crushed by Cowichan at University School, Dave Auld, five for five, and Jim Longriggs, five for 10, retired Incogs for just 17 runs. Cowichan replied with 30 for two.

Brooklin Sweeps Mann Cup Final

OSHAWA (CP) — Power-play specialist Julie Kowarik scored four goals Sunday to lead Brooklin to a 10-4 victory over Nanaimo Luckies and their first Mann Cup senior lacrosse championship in five attempts.

The Redmen, Eastern finalists four times in the last five years, outmuscled and outran the Luckies who had only four players uninjured going into the game.

OTHER SCORERS

Playing coach Don Craggs and Ken Green each scored two goals for Brooklin. Single goals went to Paul Tramm, Jim Campbell, and Wayne Davidson.

Rookie Don Stephenson scored three goals for Nanaimo and Brian Van Horne, a pickup from Port Alberni, added the other.

Brooklin goaltender Joe Tomashen, acquired from

Montreal won the backing of the Canadian Olympic Association to be the site of the games should they be awarded to Canada by the International Olympic Committee.

VOTING MEMBERS

Of the 35 voting members on the committee, 20 are from the Montreal area and 15 from the rest of Canada.

"We'll still be going ahead with everything, including the new stadium," Allen said.

"The only difference is that we don't have to fit our plans now to suit the Olympic committee. If it interests us to want a domed stadium, we now are in the position to talk about it—we weren't before."

CUTTING EDITORIALS

Allen's attitude of "we didn't especially want the Olympics at the beginning, but we didn't want Montreal to have it by default," was not generally reflected in Toronto columns and editorials.

Bob Pennington in The Telegram, wrote:

"The only valid question now is how will the rest of Canada react to the clearly outrageous verdict of an, at best, incompetent jury? Will the temptation to put the screws on a prostrate province overcome all considerations of national pride? I hope not for this is one case where the dangers of non-acceptance of an unjust verdict are even greater than its condonation."

"Why . . . should one speedthrift, credit-hunting son get the nod to throw yet another international ball and rely on the rest of the family to help pay for it?"

SATS DECK STACKED

The Telegram in an editorial said:

"Well, it was in the cards . . . the deck was stacked. The selection committee was heavily weighted with representatives from the Montreal area and undoubtedly the demonstrated

They recommended lifetime suspension of Bill Stuse, 29, of Richmond, and five-year suspension of C. Dennis Terry, 28, of Richmond.

ATTEMPT TO FIX

In a statement accompanying the recommendations, the stewards said evidence showed there was an unsuccessful attempt to fix a race Aug. 21; "a race Aug. 26 was aborted by those involved" and on Aug. 28 three jockeys were removed from their mounts before the first race.

New York Teachers

Work Order Disobeyed

NEW YORK (UPI) A state Supreme Court Justice Monday night signed a temporary restraining order barring teachers from continuing their one-day strike against the city's public schools but the strike's leader indicated there would be no compliance.

Albert Shanker, president of the striking United Federation of Teachers, said he was sure "the injunction won't put any children in the classrooms." He made no move to follow the injunction which ordered him to tell the teachers to return to school.

The strike came on the opening day of schools for the fall terms. The board of education reported less than 3,000 of the system's 60,000 teachers reported for duty and less than 30,000 of 1,120,000 pupils in the nation's largest school system showed up.

The restraining order, sought by the board, directs the UFT to show cause why the UFT should not be permanently enjoined from striking. Justice Harry Frank signed the order.

Shanker and union teachers ignored a similar order last year in a near three-week strike over higher pay. Shanker wound up serving a 15-day jail sentence over the Christmas holidays for the infraction. The state's Taylor Law forbids strikes by public school teachers and other public employees.

School children displayed mixed emotions and mixed loyalties during the first day of the strike.

In Queens, a white student carried a sign saying "civil rights for teachers" while in Brooklyn, Negro students crossed picket lines set up by teachers.

Campus Solution

SFU Leader Backs Debate

BURNABY (CP) — Debate, not power confrontations, is the way to solve campus disputes, the acting-president of Simon Fraser University said Monday.

Dr. Kenneth Strand told a student-faculty meeting that power confrontations erode the life of the university. He pledged the balance of his term as president to "see this university once again becomes a place where debate is upon the merit of ideas, not personality."

He said most disputes on the SFU 7,000-student campus had been confrontations of power instead of ideas.

Dr. Strand was appointed acting president of Simon Fraser Aug. 1, following disputes between the university administration, the Canadian Association of University Teachers and the student body.

The CAUT had censured the SFU administration's hiring and firing policies — a move which led to the May 31 resignation of president Patrick McTaggart Cowan and the appointment of two other acting presidents before Dr. Strand.

A student press release during the weekend accused the SFU faculty of "dishonesty, inconsistency and a demonstrable inability to participate in democratic decision making" in Dr. Strand's appointment.

Immigrants Claim Anglo-Saxon Bias

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Leonard school commission was accused Monday of discrimination against immigrant children by imposing all instruction in French while providing education in English for those of "Anglo-Saxon origin."

The charge was made in a plea to the Superior Court by lawyer Claude Armand Sheppard at a hearing on a petition presented on behalf of two dissident commissioners who seek an injunction against the undilingual policy for the suburb's elementary schools.

The case was taken under advisement late Monday. Two of the commissioners who voted in favor of the resolution at a special meeting June 27, testified discussions had not been permitted prior to the June 10 referendum approving bilingualism because "the popular will on the judgment was clear."

Mr. Sheppard testified that on Sept. 4 the commission ratified a recommendation that special provisions for English-language instruction be made for children of Anglo-Saxon origin.

Poor Library Grants Convention Target

Large grants from the provincial government are necessary to maintain and develop library service, according to Ald. Frances Elford of Oak Bay, a member of Greater Victoria Library Board.

And next week she will ask the support of the Union of B.C. Municipalities for an increase in the present 18½-cent per capita grant.

A resolution from Oak Bay council to the UBCM convention in Vancouver, which Mrs. Elford will attend, states the present grant level is not enough.

Mrs. Elford said British Columbia gives the smallest provincial grants in Canada for library service. Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan each give more than $1 a head of population for libraries.

The case was taken under advisement late Monday.

Columbia Forgets Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Columbia University said Monday it will ask city courts to dismiss charges against most of the more than 600 students arrested in disorders on its campus last spring.

The move by acting president Andrew Cordier appeared aimed at avoiding further disorders when the school opens for the fall term Sept. 26.

Students leaders have promised more demonstrations when classes open unless certain demands were met. One of them was dropping of the charges against those arrested.

Cordier said charges would be dropped against students who had been arrested once on trespassing charges. He said this would not affect students arrested more than once or arrested on more serious charges.

Of those arrested, 575 cases are still pending, and the university's move will seek dismissal charges against 391. Other charges against students included assault.

Students End Exam Boycott

PARIS (AP) — With police standing by and Education Minister Edgar Faure on hand, most Paris medical students turned up Monday to take year-end examinations delayed by the May-June crisis in France.

The education ministry said that participation in the exam-nations ran from 80 to 95 percent.

The estimate was not immediately contested by a student "action committee" which called for a boycott of the exams as pressure on the government to hurry along university reforms. The action committee wants exams replaced by

Western Provinces

Health Chiefs Meet With Dental Group

The health ministers of the four Western provinces and the government of the rate question had been decided long before this interprovincial meeting opened.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark would only say Monday afternoon that if a statement was to be issued at the conference winding up he would be the spokesman. He declined to say anything about the nature of the talks.

However, Welfare Minister Dan Campbell, whose department has been negotiating with B.C. dentists over the rates to be paid for professional services to welfare patients, did take part in the meeting for a while Monday morning.

Afterward, he would say only that a satisfactory basis for

NDP Queries Mental Health:

Loffmark Spurns Advice

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was accused by an opposition spokesman Monday of ignoring the advice of "outside" professionals in the mental health field.

"He's doing more than (former health minister) Wesley Black," said Dr. Ray Parkinson, a psychiatrist and NDP member for Burnard.

"The minister is now talking to those outside, but he's still taking his advice exclusively from those in the mental health branch of the civil service."

"While he's listening to what is being said, he's more aggressive in saying, 'This is the way things are going to be done...'"

ACTIVELY RECRUITING

Dr. Parkinson was commenting on two announcements by Mr. Loffmark Monday. The first said the government now is actively recruiting to fill 12 new positions in the mental health establishment set up in the current budget and approved by the legislature last spring.

The second announcement concerned a decision to be reached by a special committee Thursday on whether a new institution should be built to care for youngsters that required neither jail nor the regular mental facilities, but something in between.

NOT REQUIRED

Dr. Parkinson said the minister had been told by outside experts that a new institution was not required in this case. He claimed the answer lay in providing "more consultation people in the field."

The government also acted contrary to professional advice.

RECORDS WEIGHT

A micro-meteoroid sensor can record a grain of sand dropped from a height of one centimetre.

from outside, Dr. Parkinson added, when it went ahead with construction of the new Burnaby residential centre for emotionally disturbed children. It will open its doors to an expected 45 patients in late October or November, he said.

Mr. Loffmark said the cabinet committee's first task was to determine the number of youngsters who might require special services if a new clinic was built. He added: "There is a little difference of opinion as to how many there might be who could take advantage of such services."

At a guess, the minister said, the number might run from 10 to 30 youngsters.

The increased staff now being recruited would cover five inpatient institutions, five new mental health centres, and the new residential treatment centre in Burnaby. The cost in salaries if all positions are filled will be approximately $750,000 a year.

Clothing Storage Fire Blamed on Saboteurs

HAVANA (AP) — Saboteurs were blamed Monday for a fire in the Cuban provincial capital of Camaguey that destroyed $1,500,000 worth of clothes and fabric stored for distribution in the province.

The Communist party organ Granma said the fire apparently was caused by sabotage but did not report any injuries or arrests.

Victoria Visitor Jailed, Mace in Chicago*British MP Feels 'Like Human Guinea Pig'

By NANCY BROWN

Still unable to stand strong after 10 days of being sprayed with mace, a British woman MP said Monday in Victoria she is wondering if she will retain her eyesight.

"I feel like a human guinea pig. No one knows what the U.S. Democratic party can do."

Threats Against W.H.O.*Vatican Ban On Control
'Arrogant'

By JOHN MATTERS

Pope Paul's ban on birth control represents the advice of "the most dogmatic and militant Christian group," a doctor with the International Population Council said in Victoria Monday.

Dr. Lewis Anderson, a former British Columbia public health officer now with the council in Ankara, Turkey, said the Roman Catholic church threatened to cripple the World Health Organization if it promoted family-planning programs.

The threat apparently was successful because the organization dropped its plans, which were taken up by the Population Council, an organization endowed by John Rockefeller.

SINGLE GROUP

"As a result, countries like India have been refused help by the WHO because of a single religious group," Dr. Anderson told a meeting of the Victoria branch, World Federation of Canada.

He praised Dr. Brock Chisholm, WHO's first director general who is now living in retirement in Victoria, for his efforts to promote population control.

GYNECOLOGISTS

In addition to the Roman Catholic church, other groups are against birth control, said Dr. Anderson.

They include gynecologists who make fortunes out of abortions in countries such as Turkey, the military leaders who want personnel to perpetuate their armies and the industrialists who want to be ensured of a cheap labor force.

However, the Roman Catholic viewpoint was an "arrogant, legalistic" approach devised in the minds of men. Jesus Christ had very little to say about birth control, said Dr. Anderson.

NOTHING PRECLUDES

"There is nothing in pure Christianity which in any way precludes birth control," said the doctor, who also has been stationed in India.

Dr. Anderson said if the Roman Catholic church wanted to justify its stand in terms of natural law it must be prepared to expose those laws for scrutiny."

ACID SPONGE

Dr. Anderson said the French were the first to use birth control methods, including insertion of a sponge soaked in vinegar or lemon juice.

The population of the world is doubling every 33 years, he said, and by the year 2,000 will be 7,000,000,000.

DARK GLASSES

"I'm still wearing dark glasses most of the time," she said, "but I look better than I did a week ago."

"My eyesight doesn't appear to be impaired, but my eyelids are still swollen."

"I've seen two doctors, two eye specialists and two chiropractors in the last 10 days. The likelihood is that I reacted quickly enough in closing my eyes against the attack and that the corneas are all right."

"However, no one knows what the long-term effects will be."

Mrs. Kerr said the mace was squirted right in her eyes from a distance of about six inches.

"There was a terrible burning sensation in my eyes and on my face, and someone told me to rub my eyes or the mace would get right in."

Mrs. Kerr said she has asked British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart to lodge a formal protest with Washington about her treatment in Chicago.

"I haven't had an apology from Chicago Mayor Richard Daley," she said, "and I can't think he hasn't been told about this."

FIRST BALLOT

She watched Wednesday's convention on TV and by evening a mood of bitterness and pessimism prevailed in the Conrad Hilton hotel as it became clear Hubert Humphrey would win on the first ballot.

"Some people were putting on symbolic black crepe armbands," she said.

ONE GIRL

After a while she found one girl demonstrator and took her back to the hotel to revere.

"At about 7:30 p.m., the police came around and told everyone to leave the hotel. There was no reason. There were no demonstrations going on and there was still tear gas in the streets."

"There was a line of police across the street and a crowd of young people behind them ... I went to speak to them to find communication must be kept open."

"By the time I left, after I had talked to both police and demonstrators, both sides had given assurances that they would not make any moves. The tension eased."

"This sounds presumptuous and maybe impudent, I know, but I felt I should talk quietly with as many people as I could, not just stand by and wait for trouble."

She said when she left at about 2 a.m. Wednesday, police were standing smoking, and things appeared quiet, but by morning she found some of her British friends had been tear-gassed.

FIRST DAY

"We had with us a letter signed by 100 British MPs supporting Senator McCarthy but the briefcase containing most of the original signatures was stolen while we attended the first day of the convention."

She said that evening she spent about five hours talking to young people gathered outside the Conrad Hilton hotel.

"The thing that troubled me was that there was no communication between the demonstrators and the police, and my experience of demonstrations has taught me that the lines of out what was going on and a policeman ordered me to move along."

"Then I found myself being picked up and thrown into a police van."

"I felt terribly angry and I went to a small wire window and sang 'We shall overcome' whereupon a policeman squirted the mace right into my eyes."

At police headquarters she asked to see a lawyer and the British consul, but her request was refused, and she was held for five hours.

ACTION PROMISED

"I shall take action for damages, and I expect to meet Chicago lawyers in Vancouver toward the end of the week to start this."

"I want to get this moving now, because no one knows what the aftermath from the Mace will be."

On her return to the hotel she saw the British consul who took action on her behalf.

"By 8 a.m. my $25 was returned, but I'm not going to let it rest there."

Warship Mishap Probed

The collision Sunday of HMCS Saskatchewan with a submerged object in Active Pass is being investigated by a naval board of inquiry.

Divers made a preliminary examination Monday and the Esquimalt-based escort will go into drydock later this week for a more extensive survey of damage.

The Saskatchewan, accompanied by HMCS Qu'Appelle, was returning from a Strait of Georgia exercise and was travelling through fog when it struck the unidentified object off Georgina Shoal.

The ship freed itself and made its way to port four hours late.

The board of inquiry was convened by Capt. R. C. K. Peers, commander of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron.

Architects for Saanich's first public indoor swimming pool at its first meeting Monday night.

A preliminary perspective made at the time of the A. B. Sanderson and Company Ltd. indoor recreation study in 1966 was shown to the meeting.

The committee set 4 p.m. Oct. 2 as the time for the next meeting to discuss siting and components of the $470,000 centre.

ONE-YEAR WAIT

Mr. Newberry urged a choice of architects "so that tenders can be called early in 1969 and so that, hopefully, one year from now we might be swimming in it and using other facilities."

Municipal planner Tom Loney said he would like to see an exchange of school sites near Lambrik Park so that a proposed school would not be separated from a park and the community centre by a shopping centre.

RATHER SELL SOME

It would necessitate buying land to make up the site for the community centre which, in that case, would not be in the Lambrik Estate or on present or needed municipal property, he said.

Major Curtis said he couldn't see himself advising Saanich to buy more land "when we have 44 acres underdeveloped in that area. I don't believe I would support the spending of more money. I'd rather see us sell some."

Recreation manager Bill Young said facilities should be designed more for the family than for competition sports.

Mrs. Steele said there should be facilities for spectators, "to keep the centre in the black."

She said the Y pool was a white elephant because it had no such facilities but the Colwood pool was making money.

His Thirty-Minute Trip Was Out of This World

By A. H. MURPHY

Dr. Daniel W. Fry told 250 "believers" Monday night that he was whisked from White Sands, New Mexico to New York and back in the space of 30 minutes in a test hop in an extra-terrestrial space ship.

After building a strong and convincing case for the validity of unidentified flying objects and the possibility of occasional visitations to this planet by intelligent beings from elsewhere, Dr. Fry told of the incident at White Sands in 1950.

"It is not a comment on the condition of the motor or power train, for example."

The spokesman said he was offering the warning because the stickers could create "a false sense of worthiness."

He also suggested there was a possibility of the sticker being abused.

For example, an owner could take a vehicle to the testing station and have it approved, then take it home and replace the tires with an inferior set.

He was returned, the speaker said, to face the skepticism of his colleagues.

Accepting that visitations from outer space actually do exist, the doctor said that it should not be presumed that they are planned. They might be incidental jaunts by extra-terrestrial vehicles which spend their whole existence in space.

There was no reason to believe, he added, that the visitors come from other planets nor was there reason to believe that their intentions were hostile.

Rezoning Bid Rejected

Sidney council rejected a bid Monday to rezone 9.8 acres of Melville Park area land for construction of a $1,600,000 apartment complex.

An overflow crowd jammed into the municipal council chamber to protest the proposed rezoning. Reasons for opening the application ranged from concerns over lack of children's playing and school facilities, to lack of sewage and water facilities.

The

vacancy was caused by the resignation of Alderman G. T. Horne who left Victoria to take up a teaching position in August.

Growth Levels Off

School Enrolment Slowing in Area

Preliminary enrolment figures show that Greater Victoria School District's rate of growth is levelling off.

The district has added about 700 more children this fall but the rate of increase is slowing down for the third year in succession.

First count shows 31,278 enrolled, said assistant superintendent A. J. Longmore. Several special classes have not yet been counted, he noted.

The tabulation showed: 11,335 students in high school plus 343 in occupational classes; 1,727 kindergarten youngsters; 17,568 children in regular elementary classes plus 251 in special classes.

The 700 additional children amount to only half the rate of increase of the 1964-65 term, when enrolment jumped by 1,550.

In 1965-66 the district added 1,100 pupils, and the increase declined to 932 in 1966-67.

Last fall the increase was cut down to 905.

This year's enrolment increase amounts to about 2.3 per cent.

"The rate of increase is definitely slowing down, especially in the primary grades," said district superintendent Robert Chell on Monday.

In contrast, Saanich district superintendent Robert Price told the school board Monday that the pupil population last week was 6.3 per cent more than a year ago.

Saanich School District now has 4,783 children enrolled, said Mr. Price. A year ago there were 4,485.

Sooke superintendent Ernest Hyndman said Monday that enrolment will probably total 4,960, slightly more than his previous estimate of 4,925.

Junior high school enrolment last week was 6.3 per cent more than a year ago.

Port Renfrew children are attending classes in Sooke despite a threat by parents in August that they would keep children home unless the connecting road was improved.

Nomination date for the by-election will be Oct. 15 despite earlier thoughts of an Oct. 13 nomination date.

After the meeting, Mayor Bryant, who is also chairman of the Hospital Referendum Committee, conceded that it is likely the hospital referendum will also be on that day.

"We don't have the right to set the date," he said. "That's up to the provincial government to confirm."

Vessel Flew Red Flags But 'Rescue' Unwanted

A 30-foot Seattle yacht, acting as a race-marker off Discovery Island was "rescued" by a group of sports fishermen Monday afternoon. The U.S. craft flying red flags and showing two marker buoys was reported in trouble by Victoria shore-watchers. Oak Bay Marina's charter boat My Lakewood carrying 27 afternoon fishermen sped to the rescue after they had hauled in their lines only to find they were not needed or wanted.

Saanich Meals Program

Food Vending Unit Speeds Deliveries

A special food-vending vehicle has cut delivery time for Saanich's Meals on Wheels program, said William Noel said Monday.

The first run of the expanded service, which began Monday, delivered meals to 24 shut-ins, said Mr. Noel, who is chairman of Saanich welfare committee.

"Lieut. Bob Mortimer of the Saanich fire department went on the inaugural run to assist in the most expedient route," Mr. Noel said. "And ladies of the First Christian Reformed Church provided the personal touch which senior citizens appreciate."

Goodwill Enterprises now prepares the meals in its kitchen. They are then placed in a specially designed oven in a commercial food-vending vehicle, and are served to clients on warm plates.

Mr. Noel said the service can be extended to other worthy cases and inquiries may be made to the Saanich welfare committee or public health nurses.

"He said he hoped the service would eventually be extended to serve the Greater Victoria area."

Fashion-Show Ban Ended

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — A fashion show at Bergdorf Goodman last week was something of a milestone. It was the first in history for Kimberly Knits.

Each season there are hundreds of fashion shows. Every little one horse operation tries to put one on, but not Kimberly Knits, the firm that dresses everybody from the Duchess of Windsor to the girl next door.

Kimberly has not only never paraded its fashions in a retail store but has never even had a formal show for buyers and press. The operation all seems to be very casual. Sometimes a model may be around to try something on, but mostly the clothes are shown on hangers.

When the Duchess of Windsor made her two trips to Kimberly, she picked the dresses she liked and tried them on herself.

"I think she enjoyed it," says Bob Brown of Kimberly.

The non-pushy approach of the firm reflects the personality of its owner, Jack Lazar, and his wife, Helen, a short-haired, typical Kimberly Knit customer who, naturally, lives in the clothes. Both the Lazars came to the show at Bergdorf.

For the past ten years the Lazars have never missed a Paris season. Though they often bring back as impressive collections as the stores that sell line for line reproductions, they have never encouraged any publicity on the subject.

That their way of doing business has paid off is obvious to anybody who visits their showrooms at 1410 Broadway. Though they started on a shoestring after the Second World War, they occupy a full floor and are adding another.

The business is all dresses since Jack Lazar refuses to branch out. He won't even design children's clothes, though many little girls are being named Kimberly, in his honor, these days.

This year, though, Kimberly has added to the classics a few new types that every woman needs in her life. The groups of pants suits and little black dresses for evening were the reason for the first customer fashion show.

The new Kimberly suits, all in dark colors, have been thought out for all types of figures. They have long or short jackets, or belted tunics, and the pants are slim but straight.

The little black dresses don't pretend to be dropdead types. They are simply great international travelers with scoop necks, plunging necks or gold decorated belts.

The regular Kimberly are swingier than last season. Almost all of them flare. Some have belted waistlines and skirts that flip out in pleats or swirl in circles.

Every seat in the room was filled and there were standees all around the edge for the show. The first fashions in were some interchanges with basic dresses, choice of a red coat or plaid jacket, or all three.

Besides the fall clothes, Kimberly provided a small preview of what to take on vacation next winter. The clothes are even fuller and softer. Among them are a white coat outlined in navy, a deep cream color dress with a swing skirt and a wide red and white stripe that looks like a follow-up of this summer's Kimberly uniforms with the horizontal navy blue stripes on white.

Rivals of the Kimberly Knits were the dogs that marched down the runway with the models. All of them were black and white, to go with the Kimberly story, though actually there was more white, beige, red, and navy in the show than black.

The black and white English cocker spaniel belongs to manufacturer Jerry Silverman and his designer, Shannon Rodgers. The little white poodle is Julie Trissell's, buyer for the Bergdorf Goodman department that sells Kimberly Knits.

Natty Pant Suits London's Latest

LONDON — (AP) — Trouser-suits which shed the pants to become minidresses emerged Monday as the latest idea of London's top ready-to-wear houses.

One English store is bringing out Yves St. Laurent's black chiffon see-through trouser-suit, just saved by a hip-band of ostrich feathers, for the mass market.

The Associated Fashion Designers, combining a dozen leading houses, staged a mid-season fashion parade to give the first inkling of what they have picked from the recent Paris and Rome couture shows.

There was a lot of Eastern influence.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My brother wrote me a nasty letter two years ago and said I was responsible for his wife's nervous breakdown. I admit I never cared for Emma and I did needle her a little, but I refuse to accept responsibility for her nervous breakdown.

This morning I received a phone call from my brother. He said, "I just wanted you to know that Emma is going to be operated on for varicose veins tomorrow and it's your fault."

I asked him how he figured I was to blame for Emma's varicose veins and he replied, "The doctor said depression affects the capillaries and there is no doubt that the unhappiness you have caused Emma has brought on this varicose condition."

Fatherless Child Happy

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please stop ruining people's lives? If you tell one more girl to give up her out-of-wedlock child I'm going to go to the owner of the paper and get your column thrown out.

How can you be so cruel? Don't you know that often the baby is the only thing the girl has left to live for? I know what I am talking about because I was the victim of the same busy advice, only mine came from a social worker. This miserable, hard-hearted woman talked me into giving up my child 10 years ago and I have cried myself to sleep every night since. Every time I see a dark-haired little girl on the street I wonder if she is mine.

My relatives don't want to have anything to do with me and my life is lonely and empty. If I had kept my little girl I would have been a happy woman with something to look forward to after work instead of four walls—BITTER.

Big Girl Turned Down

Dear Bitter: The social worker's advice was good. To raise a fatherless child is extremely difficult—even for a person who has emotional stability. A woman who has raised herself to sleep every night for 10 years would probably have raised a child with a million problems.

I hope it will be of some comfort to you to know that the child is better off in a home where she can have the love of both a mother and a father.

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me. My cousin Charlotte is coming from Oklahoma.

ERMA BOMBECK's New Game

The Category Is Charlie

Recently some dear friends of ours confided in us that they had all but solved their sibling rival problems at the dinner table.

We listened to them talk of peace, love and tranquility without the meal by engaging in a new game called Category. It worked very simply.

Each member of the family was allowed one night at the table where he alone named the Category and led that particular discussion. Hence, everyone had a chance to speak and sooner or later allowances on paraffin teeth and anything else we could dream of.

By the time we reached dessert, we usually had a couple of them nibbling uneventfully into their mashed potatoes, begging to be sent to an orphanage. We decided to give Category a try.

"Tonight, I'm going to talk about 'Friends,'" said our older son.

"Don't talk with food in your mouth," amended his father.

He swallowed and con-

each child could talk about something that interested him.

I had to admit, Category sounded like a better game than we were playing at present, called Trials at Nuremberg.

This also worked rather simply. We would wait until we were all assembled at the table, then right after the prayer we'd confront the children with crimes they had committed in their playpens up to the present day.

We'd touch upon bad manners, bicycles in the driveway, socks under the bed, goofing around with the garbage detail, throwing away their

QUESTION:

Can Felt Fabrics Be Drycleaned?—Mrs. E. H.

Dear Mrs. E. H.: Yes, in fact they must be drycleaned. Care should be taken to avoid staining these garments, as stain removal is difficult due to the construction of the fabric. Avoid buying felt garments with glued-on designs since the drycleaning will dissolve the glue.

Women Optimistic About New Laws

FREDERICTON (CP) — Federal legislation now lags far behind the demands of Canadian women but "I have high hopes the government will want to catch up," Anne Francis, chairman of the royal commission on the status of women, said here Monday.

The 59-year-old former broadcast journalist from Ottawa said a news conference she has no fear that the commission's recommendations will be set aside to gather dust.

"We are aware we have such tremendous backing from women that, of course, an intelligent government will want to do what we recommend," she said.

Miss Francis, who is Mrs. John Bird in private life, heads a team of five women and two men commissioners who are beginning a 19-day tour of the Atlantic provinces with two days of public hearings here.

Since the hearings began in Victoria last April, the commissioners have heard about 370 levels, most of them from women living in Western Canada, Ontario and Quebec.

Miss Francis and Lola Lange of Clarendon, Alta., also made a separate trip this summer to the Yukon and Northwest Territories for a look at the problems of Indian and Eskimo women.

"Everyone the basic demands have been much the same," Miss Francis said. "An Eskimo widow with small children shares the same needs as widows everywhere."

So far opinion has centred around demands for day care centres for the children of working mothers, equal pay and equal opportunity in the job, and further changes in abortion, birth control and divorce legislation.

"It has been quite obvious many times at the hearings that public opinion is for ahead of government on some of these questions," she said.

Miss Francis refused, as she has on several occasions,

New Health Guide Debunks Old Wives

BY JOSEPH NYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This is not the kind of stuff that should be printed in a family newspaper likely to be read by old wives or ancient uncles. They won't like it.

"Fish is not a brain food; it is simply a good food for all parts of the body."

"Whisky with aspirin is not a good remedy for a cold. The cold might improve in spite of it."

"Premature baldness in men is not caused by wearing hats; nobody knows what causes it."

"It is not important to lie on the right side when sleeping to keep from interfering with heart action; the heart actually is in the middle of the chest and not on the left side."

"Night air is not unhealthy."

"Well, if you can't believe old wives' tales and the folk wisdom of ancient uncles, what can you believe?"

Precious little, according to the American Medical Association, if the source of belief is tradition, stemming back to early settlers and the Indians, or latter day "folk fancies" and "new superstitions."

Today's health guide, an AMA publication, attempted a while back to correct what it called some common misconceptions about health. For example:

"Eating between meals is always harmful ( untrue)."

"Daily bowel movements are necessary for health ( untrue)."

"A cold can be broken up or cured (it cannot)."

"You feed a cold and starve a fever (no)."

Consider these "misconceptions about food:"

"Foods build blood (they don't)."

"Pork is indigestible (it is no more indigestible than other meats)."

"Melba toast has no calories (it has)."

won't affect the fever at all)."

As for "new superstitions:" Many people blame climatic conditions on the atomic bomb. ("The bomb has not changed climate," many say.)

Many are prejudiced against canned or frozen or otherwise "processed" foods,

and even advocate eating raw food exclusively. ("Processing does not affect foods substantially, nor does proper cooking.")

In the category of "common fallacies," there is the popular notion that "wives,ysters and raw eggs increase sexual potency."

Said the Health Guide:

"They don't."

Garden Notes

Bears 'Plant' Trees

By M. V. CHENUT

I had to make a business trip to Toronto a couple of weeks ago, and on the return journey I decided to break the trip and visit for a couple of days with an old friend and colleague who lives in Port Arthur.

It is quite a few years since I had stopped off in that part of the country, and I was curious to see what kind of plants take kindly to the Lakehead climate.

The outstanding feature of the landscape was the mountain ash; they were everywhere, and never have I seen such a prolific crop of the scarlet berries.

Driving out to my friend's palatial summer "cottage" — which had seven bedrooms, three bathrooms and a living room almost big enough to hold a political convention — I couldn't help but be impressed by the huge clusters of berries on these rowan trees. Rowan, incidentally, is the old Scottish name for the mountain ash.

The limbs of these wild trees were sagging with the weight of the berries, like our plum trees in a good year. Here and there a branch had been torn away through the sheer weight of the berry clusters.

"They're spreading all over the place," Gerry told me; he is an ardent woodsman, hunter, conservationist and observer of wild life. "Patches of hillside which didn't have a single mountain ash a few years ago are covered with seedling trees now, almost as thick as chickweed."

"Spread by the birds, I suppose?" I asked. "No — in this case it's bears!" he replied. "They feed upon the mountain ash berries last thing before they go into hibernation for the winter."

"After the blueberries and the wild raspberries are finished, they gorge themselves on rowanberries, and there isn't anything better for putting on a good layer of fat, to keep Mr. Bear ticking over comfortable until spring."

He went on to explain that while ordinarily the seeds of the mountain ash are rather reluctant to germinate, after being acted upon by the acid gastric juices in the bear's body, they sprout with unusual vigor the following spring.

This was most interesting to me, for one of the techniques used in horticulture is the treatment of difficult or hardened seeds in a sulphuric acid bath to soften the seed coat before sowing.

Apparently, old Mother Nature is three jumps and a skip ahead of the plant scientists in her seed-sowing techniques.

Gerry told me something else about the mountain ash that started me thinking. The tree produces such a heavy crop of berries that even the deliberations of the bears and the birds fail to clear off all the fruit. Some of the berries cling to the tree all winter and become thoroughly frozen during the coldest months.

In the spring, the warm sun starts the pulp fermenting, and the birds, returning from the south, have themselves a ball feeding upon this heady stuff and soon find themselves gloriously swelled.

"You never saw such a funny sight in your life," said Gerry. "These birds would yak at each other, getting more quarrelsome and argumentative by the minute. Some of them actually fell out of the tree — they couldn't fly — and would just sit there on the ground looking owlishly at you when you approached. I wonder if birds have hangovers?"

My wife has made rowanberry jelly from the fruit of our mountain ash — it is especially good with veal and with cold cuts — but it never occurred to me before that these orange-scarlet berries might yield a homemade wine of considerable horsepower.

ART BUCHWALD Helps Kremlin Out

They Need a Cover Story

WASHINGTON — It's hard to believe the Soviet Union would invade a country the size of Czechoslovakia without a decent cover story.

Originally, if you recall, the Soviets announced they were coming into the country with other Warsaw pact troops at the request of Czechoslovak leaders.

But someone goofed, because when Russians were asked at the United Nations who the Czech leaders were, the Soviets couldn't come up with one name.

Then the Russians changed their story and said they were invading Czechoslovakia to prevent the Czechs from being overrun by the West Germans.

When this one was sent up the flag pole and no one saluted, the Soviets finally said they had invaded Czechoslovakia to protect the Czechs from themselves.

"I am well aware of that,

Comrade Stumpfchik, and I assure you everyone in the fiction division of the Soviet Writer's Union is working on it. As a matter of fact, I have just been given a plan by Boris Bogomoloff that I wish to submit to the committee."

"Approved."

"Bogomoloff suggests we announce that the reason the Soviets invaded Czechoslovakia was to scout the Czech Olympic team for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City."

"You must be kidding, Petrov."

"We've found one."

"Great, that's all we need is one. Who is he?"

"The Soviet ambassador to Czechoslovakia."

"Holy Lenin, what kind of a Kremlin do we have if we can't even come up with a good excuse for invading a lousy little country like Czechoslovakia. What happens when we invade a big country?"

"Comrade Sorovensky, why couldn't we say we went into Czechoslovakia to prevent an American-Zionist-Maoist Fascist counter-revolutionary plot?"

"We have said it, you idiot. But no one believes us. Even the Soviet people don't believe us."

"To think there would ever be a credibility gap in the Soviet Union."

"You're all a bunch of stupid hard-line Communists. Here we have 600,000 troops sitting in Czechoslovakia and no one knows what we're doing there."

"Couldn't we say we're there for rest and recreation?"

"We can't. Now let's start from the beginning. Why did we send our troops in?"

"To preserve law and order."

"That's not bad. And why did they fire on the population?"

"Because our soldiers were provoked, spat at, cursed, and people threw rotten fish and beer cans at them from hotel windows."

"Of course. And we only used as much force as necessary to restore order."

"That's good. Now what about all the arrests we made?"

"We only arrested those people who, in the opinion of our troops, were disturbing the peace."

"Beautiful, Comrade Rumberko. Where did you get the idea?"

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Mia Rates $400,000

HOLLYWOOD (NANAY) — Mia Farrow's new picture price is $400,000. And with Rosemary's Baby making millions for Paramount, she's worth it. I was not surprised when Mia refused attorney from Frank Sinatra in her Mexican divorce. She has never been greedy. Only ambitious.

Rex Harrison is always walking out, and then usually back into his films. So again I was not surprised when he walked back into The Staircase. When I saw him in London he was going to sleazy homosexual haunts to get the atmosphere for his role. A recent Rex walk-out and walk-in was Doctor Dolittle. He was the first actor for Mr. Chips, but that time he stayed out.

Faye Dunaway has no thought of leaving her film with Jerry Schatzberg, ex-ace photographer-turned director, although their romance seems to be over. It was a commitment and she won't risk the same sort of lawsuit she had with Otto Preminger — she has to pay him a percentage of her future pictures in return for tearing up the contract she signed with him at the time of their hurry, Sundown.

Anouk Aimée was back in Paris by the time Omar Sharif landed in Hollywood. There was strong talk of a romance between them while they co-starred in Rome in The Appomattox, which added up to nothing when Anouk's husband decided he did not all want a divorce. They will be parted again when Anouk goes to North Africa for Justine.

Peter Sellers was telling them in London that he is very high on I Love You Alice B. Toklas, but now that I have heard from some people who have seen the picture, I have a nasty feeling Peter may be disappointed. Perhaps he should return to the character roles that made him so popular . . . And whatever happened to the blooming career of Laurence Harvey? He recently completed something in Peru, then Romania from whence he came to stardom via South Africa.

Everyone is hoping that Fred Astaire's performance in Flannigan's Rainbow will win him an Oscar nomination. I don't believe Fred has ever walked off with the gold-plated statuette. In his youthful heyday in Hollywood, musicals did not win Oscars. Gene Kelly's an American in Paris changed all that.

Little for the Mind

SYDNEY HARRIS

It is an axiom in history that no nation ever knows itself — and America is no exception. Consider, for instance, the prevailing myth that we are a "business-minded" people.

Actually, we are the most imaginative people in the world about business — the most poetic, the most fantastical, the most incredible visionaries.

The French (whom we mistakenly suppose to be romantic) are actually businesslike about business: cool, practical, and prudent. The English are businesslike about business: dry, methodical and meticulous.

But the Americans? We approach business with a passion that burns yellow and red and blue all at once. We are crazy and daring and inspired about business; we do all sorts of things nobody else would dream of doing; and we have revolutionized the capitalistic system with our fancy and our fervor.

But — and this is the hugely hilarious paradox — where we are imaginative about business, we are businesslike about our imagination. We have precisely reversed the natural order of things.

We approach the world of imagination — that is, of art and the spirit generally — with the mind of a pawnbroker and the mood of an acutary, asking such mundane questions as "How much is it worth?" and "Will it pay?" and "What does it mean in practical terms?"

When we create a new product, we do so with a flair, but when we touch a new poem or painting, we do so with suspicion. We erect a new building with almost religious zest, but we hear a new piece of music with a sour skepticism.

Americans are wonderful but a composer cannot beg a pittance to write a symphony, because he is a "bad risk," and music is not a "business-like" operation.

There is nothing practical about business in America; the only place we are practical is the one place we shouldn't be — in the expression of those eternal values which alone give life any meaning.

THE GOLDBERG POLICY

How To End Vietnam War

In the first of a series of articles by Arthur J. Goldberg starting today in The Daily Colonist, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations outlines his proposals for ending the long conflict in South East Asia. His main points:

• The U.S. must now extend to all of North Vietnam its cessation of bombing.

• Reconvene the Geneva Conference with or without Red China.

• Seek for South Vietnam the right to determine its own political destiny with internationally supervised elections on the basis of one man, one vote.

• Repudiate the outrageous trial and sentencing of former presidential candidate Truong Dinh Dua. Amnesty for all political prisoners.

Today's article appears on Page 5.

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service
PARIS — The North Vietnamese delegation to the talks here with the United States is talking as though it expects President Johnson to order a halt to all bombing of North Vietnam before the American election day. Many observers here agree.

The North Vietnamese have consistently maintained that the purpose of their talks since May 13 with American Ambassadors Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance is to "determine" the halt to the U.S. bombing.

They have also said that after the United States halts the bombing and "all other acts of war" against North Vietnam the Paris talks can go on to discuss other matters of mutual interest.

IMMENSE PRESSURE

Observers who have followed the talks believe the North Vietnamese have concluded that President Johnson, under immense pressure from the Democratic Party not to lose the November election to Republican Richard Nixon, will call a bombing halt just before election day as a peace gesture.

The North Vietnamese may calculate that a bombing halt will be the last concession they will get from Mr. Johnson before he leaves office Jan. 20. The credit to be derived from any negotiated settlement of the war will therefore go to his successor rather than to Presi-

Matching Would Be Easier

U.S.-Wide Kidney Pool Urged for Transplants

NEW YORK (AP) — A scientist called Monday for a U.S.-wide, and eventually international, pooling of cadaver kidneys so a donor kidney could be flown to the hospital where the most closely matched recipient is waiting.

The kidney should be taken out and put in a box and shipped to wherever the patient is," he said.

Dr. Raul Terasaki, an immunologist at the School of Medicine, University of California at Los Angeles, made the recommendation at the second international congress of the Transplantation Society.

Donor kidneys cannot be shipped now because procedures to preserve them for longer than a few hours have not yet been developed. In three cases, however, recipients have been flown to the hospital where a donor kidney was to become available.

"It's very cumbersome to deal with this kind of thing," Terasaki told reporters, and said his laboratory and others are working on the problem of storage and shipping.

Terasaki reviewed 400 kidney transplants from throughout the world and found, he said that kidney transplant failures occur much more often in patients whose white blood cells are mismatched.

Typing of white blood cells appears to be the key to long term acceptance of organ transplants, he said. Terasaki's group also had done the typing for all the heart transplants performed in Houston, Tex.

PNE Dipper In Flames

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm fire was burning Monday night in the roller coaster at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds in Vancouver.

There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Police blocked off traffic on surrounding streets as fire fighting vehicles moved in. Smoke and flames were visible over a wide area.

Kennedy Endorses Humphrey

CHICAGO, Mass. (UPI) — Senator Edward Kennedy, returning to active politics for the first time since his brother's assassination, Monday endorsed the Humphrey-Muskie ticket in a three-stop tour that showed the Kennedy magic touch is still very much there.

Humphrey disclosed his stand on the plank in a question-and-answer session with an overflow crowd of his supporters, sprinkled with a handful of anti-war demonstrators. He did not go as far, however, as to say he would order a bombing halt if he were elected.

In Philadelphia, Humphrey told a group of political science students the withdrawal would be possible if there are no "unusual developments."

Humphrey, officially opening his campaign for the presidency, said "negotiations or no negotiations, I think we can move some troops out" by that time.

'His Life Not Worth It'

• Refugees vanish into bush. Page 6

LAGOS (AP) — Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigerian's military ruler, said Monday he would not trade the life of Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu for peace in Nigeria's civil war.

"His life is not worth the lives of 36,000,000 Nigerians," Gowon told a press conference.

The said that if his troops caught Ojukwu inside the sprawling borders of Biafra, he would be placed on trial for treason.

"A simple charge," added Gowon, who served with Ojukwu in the Nigerian army before the secession and civil war in 1967.

He said he would not grant Ojukwu amnesty in return for a surrender in the 14-month war.

A reporter asked what the penalty for treason is in Nigeria.

"We follow English law," answered Gowon.

"In fact, it would be death," said the reporter.

"Thank you," said Gowon. "I only hope he considers the implication of any actions he contemplates during. I hope he does not take action. I can never tell the repercussions in that country."

"I am not worried about what anybody says about this country. All Nigerians are once was the 29,000-square-mile Eastern Nigerian region.

"There is not going to be any indiscriminate slaughter of innocent civilians," said Gowon. "I want to swear it to God Almighty."

He added that the troops also have been ordered to avoid harming any of the scores of relief workers from Europe and North America now in Biafra.

He refused to take direct issue with President de Gaulle of France who told a news conference in Paris the possibility of French recognition of Biafra could not be excluded.

"He is head of state and he has the right to say anything he wants about any situation," said Gowon. "I only hope he considers the implication of any actions he contemplates during. I hope he does not take action. I can never tell the repercussions in that country."

Toronto Dries Tears Pushes Stadium Plan

TORONTO (CP) — The tears were dried Monday and Toronto, which lost to Montreal in its bid to play host to the 1976 Olympic Games, will go ahead with plans for a massive development of sports facilities.

"We'll be the city that's known as the sports capital of the nation," said William Allen, Metropolitan Toronto chairman.

Castaways Claim Third Place

FINAL

	P	W	L	T	Y	Pts.	Per.
Cowichan	12	10	2	0	1	21	75.0
Athlons	12	9	3	0	1	19	66.7
Castaways	12	8	4	0	1	17	58.3
Oak Bay	12	7	5	0	1	14	46.7
Bronx	12	6	6	0	1	12	40.0

Next match: Saturday—Kneehole, Cowichan vs. Bronx, 2 p.m.

Castaways claimed third place over Incogs Sunday in the final matches of the regular league schedule.

Captain Dick Hales led Castaways to victory over Athlons, scoring 50 runs as Castaways replied with 118 for four to the losers' total of 116 all out at Beacon Hill Park.

Trevor Holgate, four for 41, and Doug Dodge, four for 51, led the winners' bowling attack. John Shearer scored 45 not out and Malcolm Shanks had 34 for the losers.

Incogs failed to hold onto third when they were crushed by Cowichan at University School. Dave Auld, five for five, and Jim Longridge, five for 10, retired Incogs for just 17 runs. Cowichan replied with 30 for two.

Montreal won the backing of the Canadian Olympic Association to be the site of the games should they be awarded to Canada by the International Olympic Committee.

VOTING MEMBERS

Of the 39 voting members on the committee, 20 are from the Montreal area and 19 from the rest of Canada.

"We're still going ahead with everything, including the new stadium," Allen said.

"The only difference is that we don't have to till our plans now to suit the Olympic committee. We can build to suit ourselves. And if interests in Toronto want a domed stadium, we now are in the position to talk about it—we weren't before."

CUTTING EDITORIALS

Allen's attitude of "we didn't especially want the Olympics at the beginning, but we didn't want Montreal to have it by default" was not generally reflected in Toronto columns and editorials.

Bob Pennington in The Telegram, wrote:

"The only valid question now is how will the rest of Canada react to the clearly outrageous verdict of an, at best, incompetent jury? Will the temptation to put the screws on a profligate province overcome all considerations of national pride? I hope not for this is one case where the dangers of non-acceptance of an unjust verdict are even greater than its condemnation."

"Who should one spendthrift, credit-hunting son get the nod to throw yet another international ball and rely on the rest of the family to help pay for it?"

SAYS DECK STACKED

The Telegram in an editorial said:

"Well, it was in the cards... the deck was stacked. The selection committee was heavily weighted with representatives from the Montreal area and undoubtedly the demonstrated ability to handle a world-wide event like Expo had a strong carry-over."

Dick Beddoe, the Globe and Mail, wrote:

"It must be said, to the credit of the COA authorities, that they went through the formality of listening to Mr. Allen's lucid plea. They clapped and said hell of a speech. Bill, and we'll be glad to see you at the Montreal Olympics in 1976. Then a majority of them went off and obediently marked their ballots for Mr. Drapac."

RESULT OF POVERTY

The Star, in an editorial, said: "This lopsided representation is the result not of a conspiracy but of the poverty of Canada's amateur athletic associations. Because the Canadian Olympic Association headquarters is in Montreal, they find it economical to appoint representatives who live there or near there."

"We shall just have to be good sports and wish Mr. Drapac good luck with this projected Grandson of Expo against the stiff international competition he must still meet."

At Exhibition Park

Suspensions Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Exhibition Park board of stewards Monday recommended the lifetime suspension of a jockey and horseowner and at least a five-year suspension for a second rider.

The recommendation followed an investigation into alleged race-fixing at the track.

ATTEMPT TO FIX

In a statement accompanying the recommendations, the stewards said evidence showed there was an unsuccessful attempt to fix a race Aug. 22; "a race Aug. 26 was aborted by those involved" and on Aug. 26 three jockeys were removed from their mounts before the first race.

The statement said one of the jockeys was in contravention of

SECOND LOSS

It was the second straight loss for the Rams, who are back in the league after a one-year lay-off. Hornets dumped the Rams, 36-0, in the first game.

The Saanich club had a tougher time against James Bay Mustangs on Sunday, rallying for a 19-14 victory on Ray Bickford's touchdown at 12:35 of the final quarter.

TIED AT HALF

Holdovers John Van Horick, Ron Grahame and Dave Williams were out for what is generally expected to be a local week but several out-of-town players were on hand.

AMONG NEWCOMERS

COMING NEXT WEEK

Most of the out-of-town players are expected next week when the Cougars move to Memorial Arena. Latest addition to the list is Ralph Taylor, a 16-year-old Negro boy from El Cerrito, Calif., who was recommended to coach Doug Anderson by Mike Laughlin, a former Victoria Maple Leaf who played in the National Hockey League last season.

Seventh Race—$1,650 claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile, 70 yards, 10 furlongs. Total (Gates) $1,650. Total $2,100. Silken Chief (Daley) 3.50. Fem., Queenie paid $55.00.

Also ran: Two Canadians, Dorothy Jane, Cindy, and Shirley, three horses.

Also ran: Queenie, Precious White, Lingue, Again Darling, Miss Amazon, Precious White, Victoria of the Moon, Lingue, Time: 1:12.84.

It was 13-13 at halftime but John Howe put Mustangs ahead with a single. Howe scored a touchdown and a convert as well. The losers' other points came in a touchdown by Jack Checkson.

Touchdowns by Mike Herald and Pet Griffin and a convert by David Granville gave Hornets the half-time tie.

Ashe Wins Net Title Billy Jean King Upset

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)

—Arthur Ashe, Jr., a scrawny Negro amateur once barred from playing on the courts of his native Bronx, N.Y., reached the pinnacle of tennis Monday when he won a marathon duel from young Tom Okker of The Netherlands in the U.S. open championship.

The score of the near three-hour battle was 14-12, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

It was the 28th straight singles victory dating back to July for the 25-year-old army lieutenant and it strengthened his bid for No. 1 world ranking among both amateurs and pros.

INJETS NEW LIFE

The triumph, before a crowd of 7,100 at the West Side Tennis Club, also injected new life into the American game, which has been in the doldrums for almost 15 years.

The last American man to win a title on the center court here was Tony Trabert in 1955.

Ashe became the first U.S. winner of the national amateur title in 13 years by winning at Brookline, Mass., two weeks ago and the first Negro ever to take that crown.

The Open now gives him the "big double"—both the U.S. Amateur and Open crowns.

AMONG GIANTS

Ashe also was semi-finalist in the inaugural Wimbledon Open earlier this year and his success projects him alongside the game's giants, including Rod Laver, Tony Roche and Pancho Gonzales.

These ranking pros and 10 others were among the stars of the professional game to fall before amateur racquets in this inaugural Open.

GOT FIRST PRIZE

Okker himself is technically an amateur, a so-called registered player, but he was permitted to collect the $14,000 first prize under relaxed international rules.

Ashe, an amateur, played for $12 a day—the Davis Cup allowance—and a place to stay. The United States doesn't permit its amateurs to accept prize money, as other countries do.

FAVORED TO WIN

The defending champion Timberman, who were hard pressed to edge Oak Bay Farmers, 14-13, the previous week, downed Nanaimo Rams, 11-10, in December.

Ashe, after playing loosely in the fourth, came out like a jungle cat and broke Olker in the second game, taking a quick 2-0 lead. With the score 30-30, Ashe scored a perfect lob for 30-30 and then clinched the break by forcing the Dutchman to miss a backhand volley.

NDP Choice for Riding

Douglas Defends 'Outsider' Position

By HENRY BESIER

NANAIMO—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas, who won the party's nomination on Sunday for the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding, says he has taken up "permanent residence" in Nanaimo.

However Mr. Douglas made it clear his residence status hangs on the outcome of the by-election, the date of which has yet to be announced by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"I will continue to serve my party in any way that I can, although I will not contest the leadership next year," said Mr. Douglas.

ONLY WAY
He said the only way he could serve constituents of the riding is to be elected.

"There would be very little point in my remaining here unless I am elected or retire. When I retire it would probably be on Vancouver Island, although I have no intention to do so yet. I'm not ready to go to pasture."

The question of fighting the by-election as an outsider Mr. Douglas said there are at least a dozen members of the present federal cabinet who do not reside in the riding they represent.

Mr. Douglas said anyone crossing political-riding boundaries should only be judged by the following:

• Does he intend to take up residence?

Does he know the needs of the riding he represents?

• Can he suitably present the problems of the people in the constituency?

Mr. Douglas said on Monday that he intends to do all three, if elected.

One issue which the NDP will stress during the campaign is the need for Vancouver Island access to the mainland, and revitalization of the shipbuilding industry.

"Everything has to be brought by ship," Mr. Douglas said. "We are handicapped."

EASY ACCESS

He said that the question of easy access from the Island to the mainland is not a new idea, but "the time has come to do something."

Federal government is going ahead with similar projects in eastern Canada." He suggested bridge, causeway, tunnel, or combination of the three.

"We want initial steps to be taken now to accommodate future industrial development on Vancouver Island. At present, Vancouver Island is industrially handicapped with virtual tariff on everything that comes in or out."

He said a feasibility study would take about two years, with construction taking up another six to eight years—if the project is approved.

MERCHANT SERVICE

Mr. Douglas again emphasized the need for Canada to establish a merchant marine.

"At the end of the Second World War, we had the third largest merchant navy in the world. Last year we paid $437,000,000 for foreign ships to carry Canadian goods to market. I feel this money should be paid to Canadian ships."

Creation of a merchant navy would go hand-in-hand with revitalizing the shipbuilding industry, he said.

"Most shipbuilding yards in Canada are obsolete. There are only a few modern yards and it's the modern ones that are competitive."

Mr. Douglas said the issue in the by-election would be simple.

The voters would decide whether Mr. Cameron was going to be replaced by just another rubber stamp government or by a man who would continue to be a watchdog for the interests of the ordinary people.

Fashion-Show Ban Ended

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK A fashion show at Bergdorf Goodman last week was something of a milestone. It was the first in history for Kimberly Knits.

Each season there are hundreds of fashion shows. Every little one-horse operation tries to put one on, but not Kimberly Knits, the firm that dresses everybody from the Duchess of Windsor to the girl next door.

Kimberly has not only never paraded its fashions in a retail store but has never even had a formal show for buyers and press. The generation all seems to be very casual. Sometimes a model may be around to try something on, but mostly the clothes are shown on hangers.

When the Duchess of Windsor made her two trips to Kimberly, she picked the dresses she liked and tried them on herself.

"I think she enjoyed it," says Bob Brown of Kimberly. The non-pushy approach of the firm reflects the personality of its owner, Jack Lazar, and his wife, Helen, a short-haired, typical Kimberly Knit customer, who, naturally, lives in the clothes. Both the Lazar family came to the show at Bergdorf.

For the past ten years the Lazar family have never missed a Paris season. Though they often bring back as impressive collections as the stores that sell fine line reproductions, they have never encouraged any publicity on the subject.

That third way of doing business has paid off in their showrooms at 1410 Broadway. Though they started on a shoestring after the Second World War, they occupy a full floor and are adding another.

The business is all dresses since Jack Lazar refuses to branch out. He won't even design children's clothes, though many little girls are being named Kimberly, in his honor, these days.

This year, though, Kimberly has added to the classics a

Three newcomers from Kimberly Knits

few new types that every woman needs in her life. The groups of pants suits and little black dresses for evening were the reason for the first customer fashion show.

The new Kimberly pants suits, all in dark colors, have been thought out for all types of figures. They have long or short jackets, or belted tunics, and the pants are slim but straight.

The little black dresses don't pretend to be dropdead types. They are simply great international travelers with scop necks, plunging necks or gold decorated belts.

The regular Kimberly's are swingier than fast season. Almost all of them flare. Some have belted waistlines and skirts that flip out in pleats or swirl in circles.

Every seat in the room was

Besides the fall clothes, Kimberly provided a small preview of what to take on vacation next winter. The clothes are even fuller and softer. Among them are a white coat outlined in navy, a deep cream color dress with a swing skirt and a wide red and white stripe that looks like a followup of this summer's Kimberly uniform with the horizontal navy blue stripes on white.

Rivals of the Kimberly Knits were the dogs that marched down the runway with the models. All of them were black and white, to go with the Kimberly story, though actually there was more white, beige, red, and navy in the show than black.

The black and white English cocker spaniel belongs to manufacturer Jerry Silverman and his designer, Shannon Rodgers. The little white poodle is Julie Trissell's, buyer for the Bergdorf Goodman department that sells Kimberly Knits.

Top dog, though, was Mrs. Andrew Goodman's shitzau, a shaggy little fellow with a face like a pig and a coat like an abstract painting in a black and white pattern.

The shitzau is Tibetan and just one shade more chic than the Lhasa Apso that has been the status dog of the year up to now.

Mass Teen Market

Natty Pant Suits London's Latest

LONDON — (AP) — Trouser-suits which shed the pants to become minidresses emerged Monday as the latest idea of London's top ready-to-wear houses.

One English store is bringing out Yves St. Laurent's black chiffon see-through trouser-suit just saved by a hip-band of ostrich feathers, for the mass market.

The Associated Fashion Designers, combining a dozen leading houses, staged a mid-season fashion parade to give the first inkling of what they have picked from the recent Paris and Rome couture shows.

The answer is: Cat suits, jump-suits, long jinkins or waistcoats and headbands. The clothes shown in the shop for the Christmas trade.

Most coats are A-line, many of them wrapping to one side. Trousers, both slim and flaring varieties, carried the day. But ready-to-wear dresses are still short, ranging from skimpy minis to five or six inches above the knee.

Colorwise, black, white and scarlet sweep the board. Old-fashioned materials such as crushed velvet, moire, chiffon, crepe and jersey are favorites.

Several houses showed trouser-suits with long tops or

Dormitory Room Hints

By MARY SUE MILLER

A student writes: Thank you for helping me plan a budget wardrobe for my first year in college. It worked out well, something else? With only a Now will you help me with few dollars to spare, what shorts will make my room in the dorm attractive?

The answer: In most dormitory rooms there's a desk, chest of drawers, and a chair or two. That's about all.

An occupant's first needs are curtains and a bedspread. Paper draperies, fireproofed, of course, are colorful and inexpensive. A king-size terry towel in a dark solid shade makes a smart spread with easy upkeep. Both items can be worked into a color scheme — a navy terry towel — for instance, and curtain in a splashy pattern of bright blues and greens.

The dime store is a good source of such accessories as lamps, lamps, kiss pillows and scatter rugs. In lamps, white looks cheery and is a sight-saver. Bright cardigans are attractive in pillows. An effective scatter rug needs to be fluffy, richly colored and washable.

To ease storage problems, use a dust-proof paperboard case that fits under the bed. To light a dark closet or mask, there's a battery-powered lamp that tapes to the wall.

A few nicknacks from your room at home would lend a personal touch. Bookends, desk fittings, small pictures, a table clock and the like. Just so you are off to a good start.

Fashion Teeing Off

The Business Girls' Division of the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club will hold a fashion show in the clubhouse at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 11. It is the first fashion show there since the club was formed and is the first money-raising project for this group of golfers.

Proceeds from the show, which will feature clothes from Eaton's, will go toward a new fund the division intends to create. It will assist promising young golfers financially so they may attend clinics and tournaments.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My brother wrote me a nasty letter two years ago and said I was responsible for his wife's nervous breakdown. I admit I never cared for Emma and I did needle her a little, but I refuse to accept responsibility for her nervous breakdown.

This morning I received a phone call from my brother. He said, "I just wanted you to know that Emma is going to be operated on for varicose veins tomorrow and it's your fault."

I asked him how he figured I was to blame for Emma's varicose veins and he replied, "The doctor said depression affects the capillaries and there is no doubt that the unhappiness you have caused Emma has brought on this varicose condition."

Fatherless Child Happy

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please stop ruining people's lives? If you tell one more girl to give up her out-of-wedlock child I'm going to go to the owner of the paper and get your column thrown out!

How can you be so cruel? Don't you know that often the baby is the only thing the girl has left to live for? I know what I am talking about because I was the victim of the same lousy advice, only mine came from a social worker.

This miserable, hard-hearted

Big Girl Turned Down

Dear Bitter: The social worker's advice was good. To raise a fatherless child is extremely difficult—even for a person who has emotional stability. A woman who has cried herself to sleep every night for 10 years would probably have raised a child with a zillion problems.

I hope it will be of some comfort to you to know that the child is better off in a home where she can have the love of both a mother and a father.

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me. My cousin Charlotte is coming from Oklahoma.

ERMA BOMBECK's New Game

The Category Is Charlie

Recently some dear friends of ours confided in us that they had all but solved their sibling rivalries at the dinner table.

We listened to them talk of peace, love and tranquility throughout the meal by engaging in a new game called Category. It worked very simply.

Each member of the family was allowed one night at the table where he alone named the Category and led that particular discussion. Hence, everyone had a chance to speak and sooner or later each child could talk about something that interested him.

I had to admit, Category sounded like a better game than we were playing at present, called Trials at Nuremberg.

This also worked rather simply. We would wait until we were all assembled at the table, then right after the prayer we'd confront the children with crimes they had committed in their playpen up to the present day.

We'd touch upon bad man-mers, bicycles in the driveway, socks under the bed, goofing around with the garbage detail, throwing away their allowances on paraffin teeth and anything else we could dream up.

By the time we reached dessert, we usually had a couple of them sobbing uncontrollably into their mashed potatoes, boggling to be sent to an orphanage. We decided to give Category a try.

"Tonight, I'm going to talk about 'Friends,'" said our older son.

"Don't talk with food in your mouth," amended his father.

He swallowed and con-

tinned. "My very best, first choice, A-1 top of the list, first class, Cadillac of a friend is Charlie."

"Charlie who?" someone interrupted.

"I don't know his last name," he shrugged. "Just Charlie."

"Well, good grief," I sighed.

"You'd certainly think if you had a big, fat Damon and Pythias' relationship with a real, live friend you'd get around to last names."

"Who's Damon and Pythias?" asked a small voice.

"Aw, come on," said the speaker. "It's not your turn until tomorrow night, anyway."

QUESTION:

Can Felt Fabrics Be Drycleaned?—Mrs. E. H.

Dear Mrs. E. H.: Yes, in fact they must be drycleaned. Care should be taken to avoid staining these garments, as stain removal is difficult due to the construction of the fabric. Avoid buying felt garments with glued-on designs since the drycleaning will dissolve the glue.

Abortion, Divorce Status

Women Optimistic About New Laws

FREDERICTON (CP) — Federal legislation now lags far behind the demands of Canadian women but "I have high hopes the government will want to catch up," Anne Francis, chairman of the royal commission on the status of women, said here Monday.

Emma has had five children in six years and I think this is what caused her varicose veins. Check with your medical authorities and let me know if I am right. — NOT GUILTY.

Dear Net: A woman who has had five children in six years is a fairly good candidate for varicose veins even if she has a sister-in-law who is not carry about her. Ignore your brother's accusations and send Emma a bouquet of flowers. This type of surgery is no fun.

woman talked me into giving my child 10 years ago and I have cried myself to sleep every night since. Every time I see a dark-haired little girl on the street I wonder if she is mine.

My relatives don't want to have anything to do with me and my life is lonely and empty. If I had kept my little girl I would have been a happy woman with something to look forward to after work instead of four walls.—BITTER.

Since the hearings began in Victoria last April, the commissioners have heard about 300 briefs, most of them from women living in Western Canada, Ontario and Quebec.

Miss Francis and Lola Lange of Clarendon, Alta., also made a separate trip this summer to the Yukon and Northwest Territories for a look at the problems of Indian and Eskimo women.

"Everywhere the basic demands have been much the same," Miss Francis said. "An Eskimo window with small children shares the same needs as widows everywhere."

So far opinion has centred around demands for day care centres for the children of working mothers, equal pay and equal opportunity on the job, and further chances in abortion, birth control and divorce legislation.

"It has been quite obvious many times at the hearings that public opinion is far to give any indication of what the commissioners will eventually recommend to the government or when their report will be ready.

She did say that some problems facing Canadian women can likely be fixed quickly by simple legislation but "others will take much longer and some are going to require a whole change in public attitudes."

"By and large we are hopeful we can do much just by pointing to the problems. An intelligent society accepts change when it sees the need."

The commissioners will hear nine briefs during a day-long hearing in Fredericton, the home of commissioner Doris Ogilvie, a juvenile court judge.

Later in the week they head for Halifax, Charlottetown and St. John's, Nfld. The cross-country public inquiry ends with a week of national hearings in Ottawa during the first week in October.

New Health Guide Debunks Old Wives

BY JOSEPH MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This is not the kind of stuff that should be printed in a major newspaper likely to be read by old wives or ancient uncles. They won't like it.

She did say that some problems facing Canadian women can likely be fixed quickly by simple legislation but "others will take much longer and some are going to require a whole change in public attitudes."

"Fish is not a brain food; it is simply a good food for all parts of the body."

"Whisky with aspirin is not a good remedy for a cold. The cold might improve in spite of it."

"Premature baldness in men is not caused by wearing hats; nobody knows what causes it."

"It is not important to lie on the right side when sleeping to keep from interfering with heart action; the heart actually is in the middle of the chest and not on the left side."

"Night air is not unhealthy."

"Well, if you can't believe old wives' tales and the folk wisdom of ancient uncles, what can you believe?"

"It is not important to lie on the right side when sleeping to keep from interfering with heart action; the heart actually is in the middle of the chest and not on the left side."

"Lemon Jelvyn is not always harmful (untrue)."

"A cold can be broken up or cured (it cannot)."

"You feed a cold and starve a fever (no)."

"Consider these misconceptions about food."

"Beets build blood (they don't)."

"Pork is indigestible (it is no more indigestible than other meats)."

"Meibom toast has no calories (it has)."

"Never give milk to a patient with fever (the milk won't affect the fever at all)."

Many are prejudiced

otherwise processed foods, and even advocate eating raw food exclusively. ("Processing does not affect food substantially, nor does proper cooking.")

In the category of "common fallacies," there is the popular notion that oysters,ysters and raw eggs increase sexual potency."

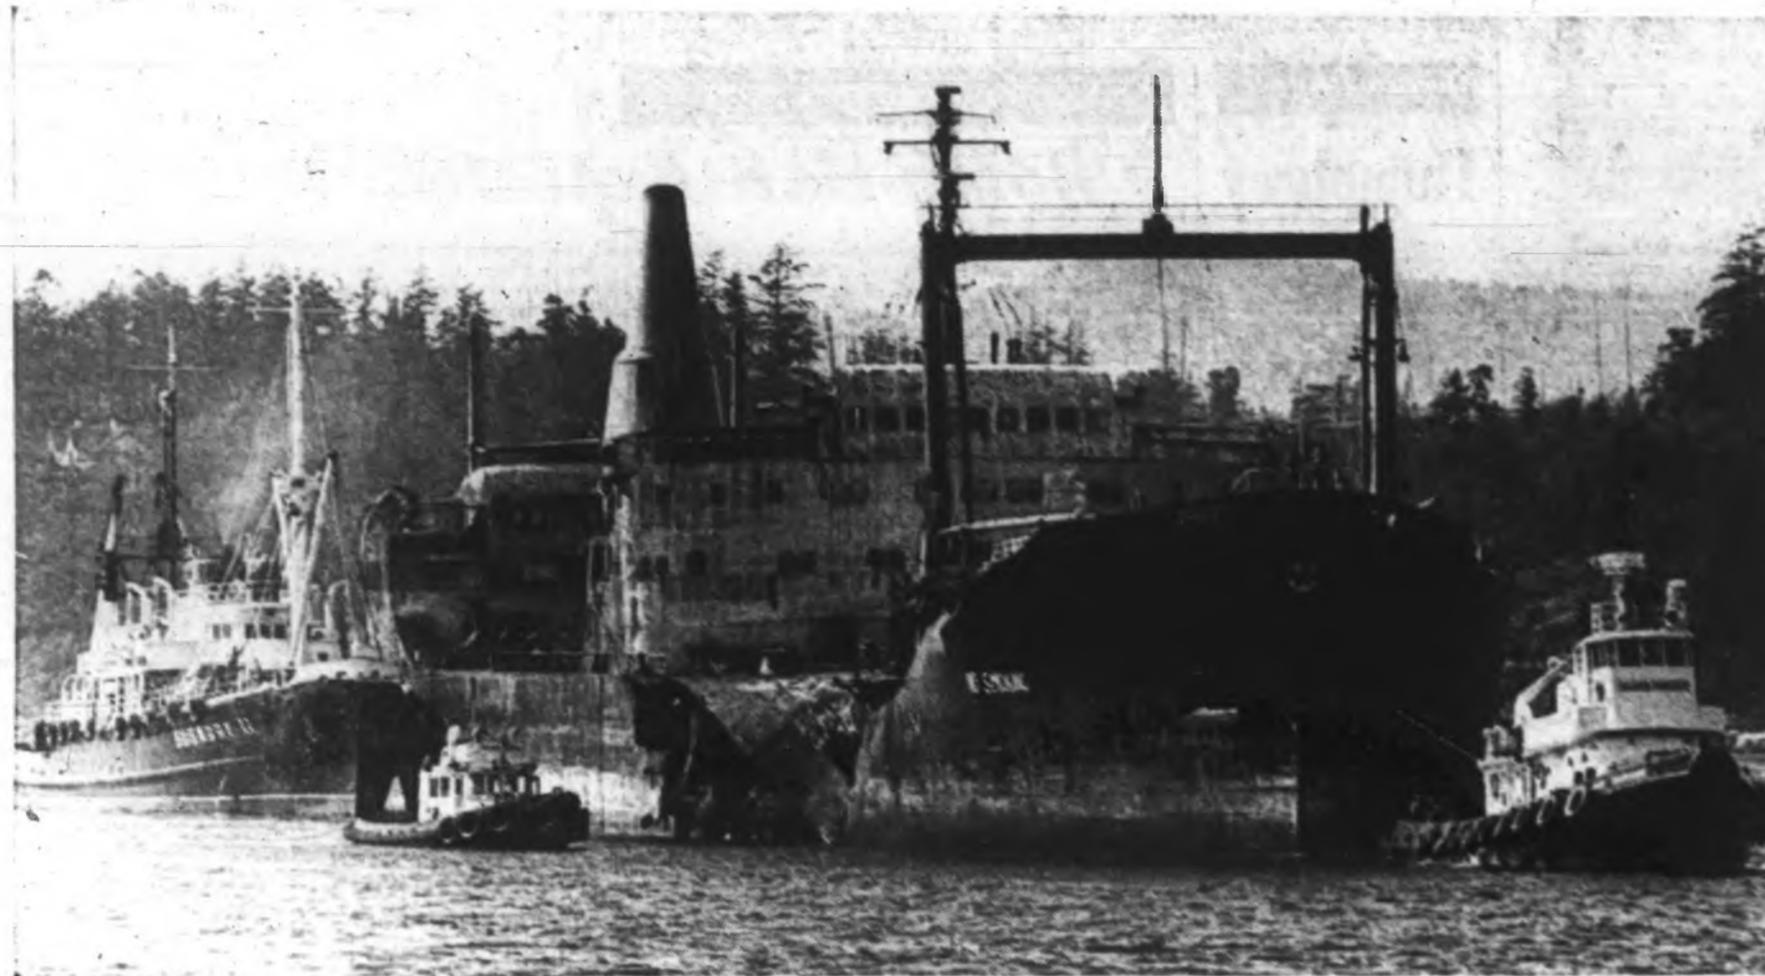

Said the Health Guide: "They don't."

How To End Vietnam War

In the first of a series of articles by Arthur J. Goldberg starting today in The Daily Colonist, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations outlines his proposals for ending the long conflict in South East Asia. His main points:

• The U.S. must now extend to all of North Vietnam its cessation of bombing.

• Reconvene the Geneva Conference with—or without Red China.

• Seek for South Vietnam the right to determine its own political destiny with internally supervised elections on the basis of one man, one vote.

• Repudiate the outrageous trial and sentencing of former presidential candidate Truong Dinh Dzu. Amnesty for all political prisoners.

U.S.-Wide Kidney Pool Urged for Transplants

NEW YORK (AP) — A scientist called Monday for a U.S.-wide, and eventually international, pooling of cadaver kidneys so a donor kidney could be flown to the hospital where the most closely matched recipient is waiting.

"The kidney should be taken out and put in a box and shipped to wherever the patient is," he said.

Dr. Paul Terasaki, an immunologist at the School of Medicine, University of California at Los Angeles, made the recommendation at the second international congress of the Transplantation Society.

Donor kidneys cannot be shipped now because procedures to preserve them for longer than a few hours have not yet been developed. In three cases, however, recipients have been flown to the hospital where a donor kidney was to become available.

"It's very cumbersome to deal with this kind of thing," Terasaki told reporters, and said his laboratory and others are working on the problem of storage and shipping.

Terasaki reviewed 400 kidney transplants from throughout the world and found, he said that kidney transplant failures occur much more often in patients whose white blood cells are mismatched.

Typing of white blood cells appears to be the key to long term acceptance of organ transplants, he said. Terasaki's group also had done the typing for all the heart transplants performed in Houston, Tex.

PNE Dipper Destroyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damage was estimated at $200,000 Monday night in a blaze which wrecked the west end of the 72-foot high roller coaster structure at the PNE.

There were no injuries in the three-alarm blaze, believed to have started in gaming tents below the 10-year-old steel and wood structure. Flames licked 300 feet into the sky and were visible from all over the city.

Kennedy Endorses Humphrey

CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI) — Senator Edward Kennedy, returning to active politics for the first time since his brother's assassination, Monday endorsed the Humphrey-McCarthy ticket in a three-stop tour that showed the Kennedy magic touch in still very much alive.

Earlier, in Philadelphia, Humphrey said he thought the United States could begin pulling some troops out of Vietnam late this year or early in 1969.

The minority plank on Vietnam had been proposed by backers of senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern. The convention rejected it resoundingly and McCarthy has since refused to endorse Humphrey.

Humphrey disclosed his stand on the plank in a question-and-answer session with an overflow crowd of his supporters, sprinkled with a handful of anti-war demonstrators. He did not go as far, however, as to say he would order a bombing halt if he were elected.

In Philadelphia, Humphrey told a group of political science students the withdrawal would be possible if there are no "unusual developments."

Humphrey, officially opening his campaign for the presidency, said "negotiations or no negotiations, I think we can move some troops out" by that time.

Lagos (AP) — Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigeria's military ruler, said Monday he would not trade the life of Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu for peace in Nigeria's civil war.

Preliminary perspective of Gordon Head centre

Warship Mishap Probed

The collision Sunday of HMCS Saskatchewan with a submerged object in Active Pass is being investigated by a naval board of inquiry. Divers made a preliminary examination Monday and the Esquimalt-based escort will go into drydock later this week for a more extensive survey of damage.

The Saskatchewan, accompanied by HMCS Qu'Appelle, was returning from a Strait of Georgia exercise and was travelling through fog when it struck the unidentified object off Georgia Strait.

The ship freed itself and made its way to port four hours late.

Old Cars

Stickers No Prizes

The Victoria Better Business Bureau suggested Monday that people buying used cars could be misled by stickers from the motor vehicle testing station.

"An approval sticker from the testing station only means the car meets certain standards of roadworthiness," said a spokesman for the bureau.

"It is not a comment on the condition of the motor or power train, for example."

The spokesman said he was offering the warning because the "sticker" could create "a false sense of worthiness."

He also suggested there was a possibility of the sticker being abused.

For example, an owner could take a vehicle to the testing station and have it approved, then take it home and replace the tires with an inferior set.

Architects for Saanich's first public indoor swimming pool at its first meeting Monday night.

A preliminary perspective made at the time of the A. B. Sanderson and Company Ltd. indoor recreation study in 1966 was shown to the meeting.

The committee set 4 p.m., Oct. 2 as the time for the next meeting to discuss siting and components of the $470,000 centre.

ONE-YEAR WAIT

Ald. Alan Newberry urged a choice of architects "so that tenders can be called early in 1969 and so that, hopefully, one year from now we might be swimming in it and using other facilities."

Comptroller - treasurer John Comptroller said he would recommend no further indebtedness by Saanich until a new debt service issue is subscribed, but said there was no reason why preliminary plans couldn't be made.

CCompromise'

Mr. Newberry said the except of the centre would have to compromise between what was ideal and what the municipality could afford.

Committee member Mrs. Betty Steele said she had visited Centennial Pool at Cobwood to learn of any problems or pitfalls.

She said the only problem there was from iron pipes depositing rust on the bottom of the pool. Manager Al Ayshford recommended plastic or stainless steel pipes.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said a visit to the mainland to inspect areas had been "most worthwhile" in the construction of the new Saanich arena, and perhaps a similar trip might turn up valuable information for the community centre. The committee voted to take such a trip.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said he would like to see an exchange of school sites near Lambrick Park so that the proposed school would not be separated from a park and the community centre by a shopping centre.

RATHER SELL SOME

It would necessitate buying land to make up the site for the community centre which, in that case, would not be in the Lambick Estate or on presently-owned municipal property, he said.

Mayor Curtis said he couldn't see himself advising Saanich to buy more land "when we have 44 acres underdeveloped in that area. I don't believe I would support the spending of more money. I'd rather see us sell some."

Recreation manager Bill Young said facilities should be designed more for the family than for competition sports.

Mrs. Steele said there should be facilities for spectators.

"To keep the centre in the black."

She said the Y pool was a white elephant because it had no such facilities but the Cobwood pool was making money.

One of the biggest questions about the future course of development concerns the block bounded by Hillside, Blanshard, Kings and Douglas. The land on months, three major sites have been assembled by developers.

Mr. Greenhalgh said it was unlikely any public enterprise would be required in this district, except possibly to buy a few of the poorest homes on unattractive lots and assemble them so that private investment could develop them.

The main city effort to redevelop the area will take place in the district south of Bay to Discovery. There has already been some attempt by

some older homes for consolida-

Douglas.

But houses in the area,

despite being either in poor condition or located on small lots, are too high-priced to

been assembled by developers.

Mr. Greenhalgh said it was

prise would be required in this

ment could develop them.

The projected second and third phases of the plan have been telescoped into one program which is already in progress, two years ahead of timetable.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said Monday

the most optimistic predictions of the effects of the Rose-Blanshard scheme had already been surpassed completed.

He said the city now plans to begin assembling land next year in the southern part of the redevelopment, a move origi-

the earliest.

Cause of the speedup has been the interest already shown by private capital in the area surrounding the 30-acre public

redevelopment that is at the core of the full 170-acre project.

Most Obvious Effect

The most obvious effect of private investment at present is the new Empress Motors premises on Douglas at Topaz northwest of the public project.

But private investors have quietly been assembling land for large apartment developments southeast of the Rose-Blanshard project, and property fronting on Rose, north of the project, has also changed hands recently.

The area bounded by Kings and Pembroke and Blanshard and Quadra has been zoned for apartment blocks for years, but none has been developed except along Quadra.

Mortgage money was never available from this declining district and it was not attractive anyway as a development worthwhile, site. But within the past few years, three major sites have

prise would be required in this district, except possibly to buy

core of the full 170-acre project.

Next year, if federal and provincial funds are available, the city will go into this area to spark private development. The idea will be to use small amounts of public funds to put together land packages that will attract private business.

So far there has been little activity in the area east and south of the Empress Motors property, but one real estate developer has assembled a property in this section. And property along the Rose Street line has changed hands recently.

Mr. Greenhalgh said the idea behind the urban renewal scheme was to estimate private investment.

He said the $350,000 put up by the city for the Rose-Blanshard scheme had already "seeded" many more times that amount of investment from other sources.

Preliminary enrolment figures show that Greater Victoria School District's rate of growth is levelling off.

The district has added about 700 more children this fall but the rate of increase is slowing down for the third year in succession.

First count shows 31,278 enrolled, said assistant superintendent A. J. Longmore. Several special classes have not yet been counted, he noted.

The tabulation showed: 11,325 students in high school plus 343 in occupational classes; 1,272 kindergarten youngsters; 17,563 children in regular elementary classes plus 251 in special classes.

The 700 additional children amount to only half the rate of increase of the 1964-65 term, when enrolment jumped by 1,550.

In 1965-66 the district added 1,100 pupils, and the increase declined to 932 in 1966-67.

Last fall the increase was calculated at 905.

This year's enrolment, increase amounts to about 2.3 per cent.

"The rate of increase is defi-

In contrast, Saanich district superintendent Robert Price told the school board Monday that the pupil population last week was 6.3 per cent more than a year ago.

Saanich School District now has 4,789 children enrolled, said Mr. Price. A year ago there were 4,485.

Sooke superintendent Ernest Hyndman said Monday that enrolment will probably total 4,360, slightly more than his previous estimate of 4,325.

Junior high school enrolment passed the estimates he said.

The vacany was caused by the resignation of Alderman G. T. Horne who left Victoria to take up a teaching position in Africa.

Nomination date for the by-election will be Oct. 15 despite earlier thoughts of an Oct. 13 nomination date.

After the meeting, Mayor

Bryant, who is also chairman of the Hospital Referendum Committee, conceded that it is likely the hospital referendum will also be on that day.
